MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

As your President, and on behalf of the CACP Board of Directors, I am pleased to present you with the inaugural edition of the new CACP newsletter. Increasing communications with our members has been a main concern for the Board of Directors over the past year, and this newsletter is just one of the many ways we are accomplishing that priority.

When we undertook our new fundraising initiative with CBU Publishers, they agreed to printing and distributing not only our annual review but also to printing and distributing two advertisement free newsletters annually to CACP members. We are extremely excited about this method of communicating with our members. These newsletters will keep you updated on CACP initiatives and activities, and give you the opportunity to share with your peers the work that you and your committees are involved in, and further, as a forum for discussion and information exchange on emerging issues of importance to you, your police service, and your communities. You can still expect to receive regular email broadcasts and communications from the CACP National Office, such as the Canadian Police Chiefs Magazine, and the CACP Membership Directory/Buyers Guide.

In this edition we recognize the significant accomplishments of CACP members across Canada. Please join me in saying congratulations to all recipients of the Order of Merit of the Police Forces and the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal. This is an honour to be truly proud of.

The aim of the national office is to support your efforts and your needs, and further to make the newsletter useful and interesting, in that regard I invite you to provide constructive feedback, ideas and articles to ensure the future success of the newsletter.

I wish you all a happy and healthy summer.

Commissioner Gwen M. Boniface
President

WELCOME TO THE NEW CACP EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

President Gwen Boniface and the Board of Directors are pleased to announce that Peter Cuthbert has been named Executive Director of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, effective May 2003. Peter retired from the Ottawa Police Service as a Superintendent after a distinguished, 30 year career with the Nepean, Ottawa-Carleton and Ottawa Police Services.

Peter brings a wealth of experience to this position. He has been actively involved in the CACP since 1996, and has served as the Interim Executive Director since April 2001. In that time, he has made significant strides in raising the profile of the CACP and providing enhanced services for members. We welcome him and look forward to working with him.

Special thanks to Chief Vince Bevan and the Ottawa Police Service for loaning Peter to the CACP for the past two years.

IN MEMORIAM

CHIEF DAVE MCKINNON,
HALIFAX REGIONAL POLICE SERVICE
AND MEMBER OF CACP BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The CACP Board of Directors is deeply saddened to announce the passing of David P. McKinnon, Chief of Halifax Regional Police Service and member of the CACP Board of Directors. Chief McKinnon passed away on May 17, 2003 in hospital after a long and courageous battle with cancer. Chief McKinnon had been an active member of the CACP since August 1996, serving on the Traffic Committee, Human Resources Committee, POLIS Committee, Organized Crime Committee, Co-Chair of the Law Amendments Committee and as the Provincial Director - Nova Scotia since 2000. Chief McKinnon was an outstanding leader who epitomized excellence in policing, and was respected for his commitment and dedication to the people he served. He will be sadly missed by all.

1983-2003:

A Twenty Year Retrospective of Police Service Medals

*Joël Chéruet, Directeur,
Gatineau-Metro Police (retired)
Chair of the CACP Decorations and Awards Committee*

The Police Exemplary Service Medal

The Police Exemplary Service Medal was established on August 12, 1983 to recognize the exemplary service of police officers whose conduct has always been beyond reproach and who have performed their duties enthusiastically and efficiently. Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau announced the Medal in his letter of greeting, read at the opening ceremonies of the CACP conference in Calgary on August 23, 1983. Police members in attendance at the conference responded enthusiastically.

The Right Honourable Edward Schreyer, Governor General of Canada, presided over the first presentation of the medals during the annual recognition ceremony of the Ottawa Police on December 14, 1983 at the new Ottawa Conference Centre. At this first presentation, the Governor General passed along the best wishes of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, and Ottawa Mayor Marion Dewar gave the reply. I had the honour of attending this dignified ceremony and to see some very active members of the CACP receive this medal, including Chief J. Jenkins, CACP President, Deputy Chief Arthur R. Rice, Deputy Chief Thomas Flanagan, S.C., and Chief Tom Welsh of the Ottawa Police. During this ceremony, Constable Russel O'Connor of the Ottawa Police was awarded the first posthumous medal.

Since then, approximately 1200 medals, including 30 and 40 year service bars have been recommended each year by the CACP Decorations and Awards Committee to the Chancellery of Canadian Orders and Decorations, a valuable partner in this initiative. Awards are presented annually, whenever possible, by the Lieutenant Governors.

The Police Exemplary Service Medal has become a symbol of integrity and professionalism that Canadian police officers wear proudly on their chests.

The Medal of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police

This medal was introduced in 1961, and 6100 medals had been awarded by the CACP Decorations and Awards Committee. The Canadian Bankers Association, recognized as a great supporter of law enforcement officers, funded the medal at this time. The Medal of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police was cancelled to make way for the introduction of the Police Exemplary Service Medal, a more public recognition of the devotion of police officers.

Order of Merit Medal

Police Exemplary Service Medal

Medal of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police

Order of Merit of the Police Forces

The highest honour created in this decade is without a doubt the Order of Merit of the Police Forces. Three CACP presidents, two executive directors and two chairpersons of the CACP Decorations and Awards Committee have been actively involved in providing guidance to the development and promotion of this honour. The CACP, in partnership with the Canadian Police Association and the RCMP, is proud to publicly recognize the commitment of the police agencies and their members, and to honour the exceptional service careers and the outstanding merit of the men and women in Canadian Police agencies.

The CACP's proposal in 1996 to publicly recognize the exceptional service of Canadian police officers was well received by then Solicitor General Herb Gray. He obtained unanimous support from the Canadian provinces. The Government of Canada, and particularly the Prime Minister, The Right Honourable Jean Chrétien, also promoted the adoption of this award at the insistence of representatives from the Chancellery of Canadian Orders and Decorations, a valuable partner of the CACP.

On October 3, 2000, Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II approved the creation of the Order of Merit of the Police Forces. At the inaugural ceremony held at Rideau Hall on May 17, 2002, Her Excellency, the Right Honourable Adrienne Clarkson, Governor General and Commander in Chief of Canada, Chancellor of the Order of Merit of the Police Forces accompanied by the Commissioner of the RCMP Giuliano Zaccardelli C.O.M., Principal Commander of the Order, admitted the first group of 23 Canadian police officers from all parts of Canada into the Order. Appointments to the Order are limited to one tenth of one percent of the average number of persons who were members and employees of the Police Forces during the previous year. There are three degrees of recognition for the Order – Commander, Officer and Member, that reflect varying degrees of responsibility.

In her inaugural speech, the Governor General highlighted the spirit of cooperation that unites Canadian police officers, and the appropriateness of Canadians recognizing those entrusted with maintaining peace and safety everywhere in Canada and internationally.

Canada Honours Exceptional Service by Canadian Police Officers

The 2003 Investiture of the Order of Merit of the Police Forces was held at Rideau Hall on April 4.

Her Excellency, the Right Honourable Adrienne Clarkson C.C., C.M.M., C.D., Governor General and Commander in Chief of Canada, welcomed the Award recipients, their families, colleagues, and friends. She spoke with obvious warmth and pride of her positive observations and interactions with police officers on her travels across Canada, and the influential role of policing in the development of Canadian citizenship and communities. She congratulated and thanked the Award recipients in particular, for using and building on their training and experience to provide exceptional service to their communities and their country.

Commissioner Giuliano Zaccardelli, Principal Commander of the Order, and Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police recognized and thanked not only the new Members of the Order for their service, dedication, and commitment, but also recognized and thanked their families for their contributions, noting that the good work done and efforts made could not have had the same outcomes without significant family support. He concluded by saying "To the officers honored today – thank you for your selfless efforts and sacrifices. I'm privileged to serve alongside you. Sincere congratulations!"

It is indeed an honour to congratulate the following CACP members who were invested into the Order of Merit of the Police Forces on April 4, 2003:

Chief Julian Fantino, C.O.M. Toronto Police Service, Toronto, Ontario

Chief Julian Fantino has served with distinction as a dedicated police officer and leader in the policing community for the past 33 years. He worked in a number of operational areas, including patrol, drugs, and homicide with the Toronto Police Force prior to being appointed Chief of Police of the London Police Service in 1991. In 1998 he became Chief of the York Regional Police Service, and in 2000 was appointed Chief of the Toronto Police Service.

Chief Fantino has successfully improved the relations between police agencies, Police Associations, Police Services Boards and various community organizations, and has been instrumental in the development of numerous organizational and community partnerships, locally, nationally and internationally. He has represented Canadian law enforcement at meetings of the Interpol General Assembly Conference, and on the Interpol Standing Working Party on Offences against Minors. He has visited police officers seconded to the United Nations peacekeeping force in Kosovo to provide leadership and support. He has also initiated training and exchange programs with policing organizations in Lithuania, Tanzania and Jamaica.

Chief Fantino is actively involved in provincial, national and international policing organizations. He is a past President of the OACP and past Chair of CISO, Ontario. He was recently appointed as Chair of the IACP North American World Regional Office, is a member of the Executive Committee of the IACP, and currently serves as Chair of the CACP Organized Crime Committee.

Chief Fantino is actively involved in numerous community organizations and church activities. He is an enthusiastic supporter of Ronald McDonald Children's Charities and the Hospital for Sick Children. He was a founding member of the Metro Junior Blues Hockey Association and Rookie League Baseball (Toronto and London) which provide underprivileged children with the opportunity to play organized sports while learning positive life skills.

Chief Fantino has been recognized for his outstanding service to the police community and to the public through numerous awards, including the Man of the Year and Person of the Year Award by the Ethnic Press Council of Canada (1993 and 2002), and was inducted into the Ontario Special Olympics Hall of Fame (1999). On being honoured with the Award of Merit of the Police Forces, he said "Receiving the award has been a highlight of my career. I am especially gratified that I have been given the opportunity to contribute to the improvement of Canadian society through the various activities I have undertaken. I am thrilled to be recognized for my work in a profession I have dedicated my life to."

Congratulations and best wishes for continued success Chief Fantino.

Directeur Michel Sarrazin, C.O.M. Service de police de la ville de Montreal, Montreal, Quebec Vice President, CACP

Through his public involvement, Directeur Michel Sarrazin has significantly enhanced the image of the City of Montréal Police Service and, thereby, of the police community as a whole.

Directeur Sarrazin has had a distinguished policing career. He served in a number of operational and administrative capacities before being appointed Directeur of the Montreal Police Department in 1998. He is well known as one of the principal leaders in the development and introduction of the neighbourhood policing model in Montreal. He has been instrumental in modernizing and professionalizing the Police Service and works tirelessly to establish and maintain linkages with the community.

Directeur Sarrazin is a noted contributor to local, national and international professional organizations. He currently serves as Vice President of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police. He supports and participates in numerous initiatives including the Montreal Mental Health Association, Scouts, and Operation Red Nose. He is particularly fond of, and participates regularly in furthering the work of the LOVE Association, a group dedicated to working with youths affected by violence. Directeur Sarrazin also sponsors the annual Montreal Police Cycle Tour, with all funds generated going to the Charles Bruneau Foundation for paediatric cancer research.

Directeur Sarrazin is pleased to be recognized for his efforts. He said " I have been a police officer for 32 years, and have been in charge of a large police service for the past five years. Over the years, I have held a variety of positions and responsibilities. In any situation and at any level, my only goal always was to do what I believed was best, and I felt satisfied and had a feeling of accomplishment when things went well. But I never ever planned to receive any special honour for it. Being granted such a distinguished honour as the Order of Merit makes me feel even prouder of what I have done. I was surprised and pleased to realize that people have noticed my efforts and have appreciated them enough to take the time to let me know. It is very rewarding."

Congratulations and best wishes for continued success, Directeur Sarrazin.

Deputy Commissioner J. Terry Ryan, C.O.M.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police,
Halifax, Nova Scotia

Deputy Commissioner Terry Ryan has distinguished himself as a forward-thinking, innovative person of action. Through leadership and vision, he has significantly influenced policing techniques, strategies and legislation within the police community, nationally and internationally.

Deputy Commissioner Ryan is well known for his commitment and tireless efforts to advance Canadian policing. He developed the RCMP's integrated approach to drug investigation and enforcement by developing policies, protocols, and processes that shifted the RCMP's almost exclusive focus on enforcement to a more holistic, multi-pronged approach that included education, prevention, treatment and enforcement. He was instrumental in the development and implementation of the Proceeds of Crime units, created in cooperation with Justice and police agencies across Canada. He also contributed generously to the development of the source witness protection legislation that protects police officers in the use of advanced investigative techniques. Deputy Commissioner Ryan was also charged with reorganizing the RCMP in Atlantic Canada. He began the challenging effort of integration of four divisions in the Region by introducing integrated management and support structures. When those structures were in place and functioning, he began the operational integration that is still ongoing.

When asked about his thoughts on being inducted into the Order of Merit, Deputy Commissioner Ryan said "you do your work to be the best you can for what you're doing, but when your peers recognize you for your efforts, it's very humbling."

Deputy Commissioner Ryan retires this year after 40 years of Service with the RCMP. We thank him for his service to Canadian policing and the public, congratulate him on his appointment to the Order of Merit, and wish him well in his retirement.

Officers

Chief Vincent Thomas Bevan, O.O.M. Ottawa Police Service, Ottawa, Ontario

Through his devotion to the police force, along with his dedication to the betterment of those less fortunate in our society, Chief Bevan has played an inspiring role as a police officer.

Assistant Commissioner Dwight L. Bishop, O.O.M. Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Halifax, Nova Scotia

Assistant Commissioner Bishop has advanced policing throughout his career by strong leadership, motivational skills and high ethical standards. He has championed initiatives within the employee assistance programs and the RCMP Chaplaincy

Program, and has been a champion of relations with the Black and Aboriginal communities of Nova Scotia.

Assistant Commissioner Kenneth D. Byrt, O.O.M. Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa, Ontario

Throughout his extensive and diversified career, Assistant Commissioner Byrt has made significant contributions to citizens and policing partners, from the local to the international level. He has always exemplified the highest standards of honesty, integrity, compassion, respect, professionalism and accountability.

Deputy Commissioner René Charbonneau, O.O.M. Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa, Ontario

As a result of his exceptional abilities as a leader, as well as his clear judgment and diplomacy, Deputy Commissioner Charbonneau has brought honour to Canada and the RCMP. Through his forward-looking vision, he has succeeded in reconciling the divergent interests of many police departments, for the benefit of Canadians.

Deputy Commissioner A. Vaughn Collins, O.O.M. Ontario Provincial Police, Orillia, Ontario

Deputy Commissioner Collins has shown distinguished commitment and a career-long devotion to public safety. This has been reflected through his exemplary leadership in developing and implementing strategies that target organized crime and terrorism.

Deputy Commissioner Stephen Allan Duncan, O.O.M. Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Regina, Saskatchewan

During his distinguished career, Deputy Commissioner Duncan has demonstrated selfless devotion to duty in the service of Canadians, not only as a police officer but also as a private citizen of the communities in which he has lived.

Chief Barry V. King, O.O.M. Brockville Police Service, Brockville, Ontario

Chief King has demonstrated unfailing leadership and commitment to his peers, to the communities he has served and to a wide variety of volunteer organizations.

Deputy Commissioner
Garry James Loeppky, O.O.M.
Royal Canadian Mounted Police,
Ottawa, Ontario

Deputy Commissioner Loeppky is a respected leader who has made significant contributions to the improvement of policing services at both the national and international levels. He has contributed considerably to communities in which he has lived, improving each of them.

Chief Edgar A. MacLeod, O.O.M.
Cape Breton Regional Police,
Sydney, Nova Scotia

Chief MacLeod has displayed the highest level of professionalism, bringing about progressive changes in policing on local, regional, national, and international levels. He epitomizes the values promoted throughout the police community.

Deputy Commissioner
Maurice Pilon, O.O.M.
Ontario Provincial Police,
Orillia, Ontario

Deputy Commissioner Pilon has given exemplary service and has shown dedication and leadership in the field of law enforcement throughout his distinguished career, thereby providing a safer and more secure environment for the citizens of Ontario and Canada.

Assistant Commissioner
Freeman C. Sheppard, O.O.M.
Royal Canadian Mounted Police,
London, Ontario

Assistant Commissioner Sheppard has distinguished himself through his foresight, actions, dedication, and convictions. He has ensured the optimal use of partnerships and information-sharing among law-enforcement agencies in Ontario, thus contributing greatly to the RCMP's priority of ensuring safer homes and communities.

Chief Glenn M. Stannard, O.O.M.
Windsor Police Service,
Windsor, Ontario

Chief Stannard, known for his courage, commitment and energy, has earned the respect of the members of his service and of his community through his professionalism and by setting an example. He has demonstrated leadership and creativity while maintaining the highest ethical standards.

Assistant Commissioner
Lawrence G. Warren, O.O.M.
Royal Canadian Mounted Police,
St. John's, Newfoundland & Labrador

Assistant Commissioner Warren has advanced policing and has improved community well-being throughout his career, most notably in his home province of Newfoundland and Labrador. His leadership has given the impetus for quality community-oriented policing based on partnerships.

Vincent Westwick, O.O.M.
Ottawa Police Service, Ottawa, Ontario

As legal advisor, Mr. Westwick has demonstrated unwavering commitment and dedication to the police community. He has always exhibited a strong work ethic and, through his leadership, his many initiatives have been instrumental in advancing policing.

Members

Chief Terence G. Coleman, M.O.M.
Moose Jaw Police Service,
Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan

Chief Coleman is an ardent advocate and practitioner of contemporary policing and strategic planning in the field of organized crime. He has advanced provincial and national initiatives such as the National Crime Prevention Centre's Community Mobilization Program. He has also made significant contributions to various local communities.

Chief Gary Edward Nicholls, M.O.M.
Niagara Regional Police Service,
St. Catharines, Ontario

Chief Nicholls has led by example. He has worked tirelessly to continuously improve the state of relations between the police and the community. His life-long work is testimony to his diligence, devotion to duty and to his love of community, particularly the citizens of, and visitors to, the Niagara Region.

Deputy Chief Fred J. Rayner, M.O.M.
Edmonton Police Service,
Edmonton, Alberta

Deputy Chief Rayner has made significant, ongoing contributions to the development and implementation of activities to improve community policing. He has fostered positive relationships between police agencies at the local, regional, and national levels.

Deputy Chief Constable
Paul N. Tinsley, M.O.M.
Abbotsford Police Department,
Abbotsford, British Columbia

Through his commitment and leadership, Deputy Chief Tinsley has been an inspiration to police officers throughout British Columbia. His dedication to developing codes of ethics and educating police officers on their importance has enhanced the integrity of policing and served the public good.

The CACP also congratulates the following non-CACP member recipients of the Order of Merit:

CONGRATULATIONS

TO RECIPIENTS OF THE QUEEN'S GOLDEN JUBILEE COMMEMORATIVE MEDAL

Commemorative medals are struck from time to time to mark important anniversaries and great occasions. In keeping with this tradition, the Golden Jubilee Medal of Queen Elizabeth II commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of Her Majesty's reign as Queen of Canada. The medal was awarded to Canadians who have made a significant contribution to their fellow citizens, their community and to Canada.

The Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police was honoured to be made a partner in this initiative and to propose Members who should be honoured with this medal. The Decorations and Awards Committee determined that this Medal would be awarded in recognition of significant achievement or distinguished service to the CACP. Considerations included:

- Continuous leadership role in achieving the mandate of the CACP
- Continuous and diligent effort toward the betterment of the CACP

- Length of CACP membership
- Committee/function participation and membership

Medals and certificates to the recipients were presented by the CACP President, Commissioner Gwen Boniface, at a ceremony and reception held on April 30th in Ottawa. Please join the President and the Board of Directors in congratulating the following CACP members on receiving this award:

CACP National Forum on Family Violence

April 3-4, 2003, Burlington, Ontario

Hosted by the CACP National Office, supported by the CACP Crime Prevention Committee, Chair, Chief Edgar MacLeod

Over 100 delegates and 25 panelists from across Canada came together for this two day Executive Forum to exchange ideas, profile good practices and explore ways to increase the effectiveness of police and community response to family violence.

Numerous recommendations were made, including the need for:

1. policies and processes that focus on spousal violence after separation,
2. more effective mechanisms to deal with children as victims and witnesses of crimes,
3. increased evaluation of offender programs,
4. improved methods for dealing with offenders,
5. more coordinated, multi-agency response to spousal violence,
6. police and governments to take into account when investigating family violence in aboriginal communities, holistic responses to treatment, healing as a life long process, support of effective aboriginal programs, and evaluation of effectiveness of treatment programs,
7. development of effective tools for risk assessment, and
8. consideration of health issues for all involved .

COPS, COMMERCE, AND ORGANIZED CRIME SYMPOSIUM

January 16-17, 2003
Toronto, Ontario

Hosted by the CACP National Office, supported by the CACP Prevention of Crime in Industry Committee, Law Amendments Committee, Informatics Committee, and the Organized Crime Committee.

This symposium brought together senior Canadian police executives, corporate executives, government officials and policy developers to explore the impacts of organized crime on society and encourage cooperative efforts to address organized crime more effectively.

Participants jointly developed a number of recommendations. They include:

1. developing mechanisms beyond MOUs and joint operations to share intelligence
2. the CACP explore opportunities to influence legislation to increase penalties for those convicted of organized auto theft
3. the CACP support the Insurance Bureau of Canada's recommendations for dedicated organized auto theft prosecutors
4. the CACP support efforts to establish a national strategy to reduce auto theft
5. the CACP promote a consistent response to organized auto theft, that includes open information sharing partnerships, public communication/education strategies, efficient data collection and analysis, innovative investigative strategies, and effective use of technology
6. the CACP, through the Informatics Committee, consider researching and recommending multi-system information exchange standards, along the lines of the BC Law Enforcement Information Portal
7. law enforcement and private industry report all suspected corruption and send a clear message that the organization has zero tolerance for corruption
8. law enforcement and industry leaders must lead the creation and maintenance of organizations based on ethical cultures
9. law enforcement and industry must implement, maintain, and regularly update integrity and anti-corruption programs.

These recommendations have been forwarded to the Organized Crime Committee for review and action.

CACP EXECUTIVE FORUM SERIES: MANAGING RISK IN A HIGH RISK ORGANIZATION

May 25-28, 2003, St. Andrews by the Sea, New Brunswick
November 2-5, 2003, Banff, Alberta

25 participants met at this Forum with legal, human resource, and risk management experts to examine the challenges police executives are facing as they strive to manage risk responsibly for their organizations and their communities. Response to the program was very positive. It will be repeated in Banff, Alberta November 2-5, 2003. Plan to join us there.

CACP, CAPB AND CPA DIRECTORS ARE WORKING TOGETHER TO LEAD PROGRESSIVE CHANGE IN POLICING IN CANADA

In 2001, the Canadian Association of Police Boards spearheaded an initiative to bring the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, the Canadian Association of Police Boards and the Canadian Police Association together to discuss matters of mutual concern and build better working relationships. This relationship is already proving to be a very successful collaboration that is helping the Associations focus and work collectively on issues of mutual concern, such as the development in the past year, of a joint drug resolution.

The second annual joint meeting of the Boards of Directors of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, the Canadian Association of Police Boards, and the Canadian Police Association was held March 22, 2003. Assistant Deputy Solicitor General Patricia Hassard opened the meeting with an informative presentation on Department priorities in Policing and Law Enforcement: Current and Emerging Issues. She noted that Canadians generally feel police are doing a good job, but have some concerns about police powers, especially as they relate to C24 (organized crime), C36 (anti-terrorism) and C17 (air passenger information to police and security agencies). A/Deputy Solicitor General Hassard noted the importance of cooperation in the public safety sector and emphasized the government's commitment to support policing*.

Participants were updated on the Human Resources Development Canada Police Sector Study and discussed a national drug strategy, inter-provincial police jurisdiction, lawful access, a national crime prevention strategy, and issues related to National Police Services such as CPIC, the Canadian Police College and funding for law enforcement.

All present agreed to continue these joint meetings, and work collaboratively in the next year on the development of joint resolutions focused on lawful access and inter-provincial jurisdiction.

*A/Deputy Solicitor General Hassard's presentation is available at www.cacp.ca under the "What's New" section.

WHAT'S NEW WITH "LAWFUL ACCESS"?

Submitted by: Lawfully Authorized Electronic Surveillance Sub-committee on behalf of the Law Amendments Committee

Your "Lawfully Authorized Electronic Surveillance" (LAES) Sub-committee continues to actively address the challenges presented by the legislative proposals to update Canada's lawful access laws. The following is a brief update.

You will recall that the LAES (originally convened under the auspices of CISC) began to lobby the Government of Canada to update laws that govern the lawful interception of private communications in 1997/98. The current provisions of Part VI were written in 1974 and are in desperate need of an update given changes in technology, new technologies such as the Internet, and the deregulation of the telecommunications industry.

In August 2002, the Government of Canada launched formal consultations and released a consultation document to solicit stakeholder views on this subject. A new law is proposed that would require all telecommunications service providers including Internet companies operating in Canada to create and maintain infrastructures that are intercept capable. Amendments to the Criminal Code and other Acts respecting the interception of e-mail, new court orders required to investigate cyber-crime (e.g., data preservation orders), and a new provision regarding virus dissemination are also proposed. The most contentious issue, is perhaps the costs associated with the assistance required by third party service providers to give effect to court orders.

The CACP response was submitted in December 2002 and is available for review at www.cacp.ca. In it, a consolidated position of all the CACP stakeholders is clearly stated.

Meanwhile, during the consultation process, some telecommunications service providers have begun making financial claims to police agencies for the assistance they provide in relation to the execution of search warrants. In fact, some have declared their intention to make claims for all assistance rendered regardless of the type of judicial authority being exercised. In law, there is no distinction between an order of the court pursuant to Part VI of the Criminal Code, and any other order pursuant to any other Act of Parliament. Therefore, we see this development as a serious concern to the administration of justice and effective law enforcement. According to a recent informal survey conducted by the LAES, having to pay for executing search warrants at businesses or institutions could cost upwards of $10M to $15M annually.

In recognition of the importance of this issue, officials from the Department of Justice Canada, Industry Canada and the Portfolio of the Solicitor General of Canada are currently working with the LAES to clarify the circumstances under which third parties, such as service providers, may be paid for work they perform for the police. It is recognized that any scheme enshrining the payment of money for court-ordered assistance could have far-reaching and long-term implications for the investigation of criminal activities across Canada.

Also, privacy advocates and civil liberty organizations, as well as the federal Privacy Commissioner have suggested that the Lawful Access initiative is in response to the tragic events of September 11th. They have also linked Lawful Access proposals to other government initiatives such as identity cards and the provisions of Bill C-17.

The fact is however is that the Lawful Access initiative began in 1998 and was followed up in 1999 with an Ottawa roundtable involving government and the law enforcement community. The events of September 11th certainly serve to underscore the importance for Canada to have adequate and effective laws to ensure public safety and national security interests are satisfied.

The LAES would like to take this opportunity to thank all agencies who recognize Lawful Access as an important public safety issue and for supporting our efforts. For example, government received in excess of 50 responses to the consultation document from police alone. This far surpasses the number of responses from any other sector of the community. Well done!

It would appear that due to the expected change in leadership, it is unlikely that the lawful access legislative proposals will be tabled in the House of Commons before 2004. We will continue to keep you advised of developments.

COUNTDOWN TO 2003 ANNUAL CACP CONFERENCE

Teresa Rath Brien, Public Affairs, Halifax Regional Police Service

The 98th Annual Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police Conference, hosted by Halifax Regional Police in Halifax, Nova Scotia from August 24-28, dedicated to the memory of Chief Dave McKinnon, is fast approaching!
