■ Our Accountability

This report is part of the RCMP in New Brunswick's commitment to accountability and keeping the communities we serve informed about both our progress and the challenges we face. The RCMP is committed to providing our partners and the public with timely, relevant information about what police are doing to help make New Brunswick a safe place for all. We are also committed to providing the public with practical information, advice, and tips to help them protect themselves from becoming victims of crime, or to report crimes or suspicious activity to police.

The RCMP in New Brunswick's website is constantly updated with information and news releases about police investigations and initiatives throughout the province, along with information about policing priorities, programs and services, crime prevention, and unsolved crimes.

New Brunswick RCMP news releases can be accessed at www.rcmp-grc.ca/nb. Alternatively, you can become a subscriber and receive an e-mail alert each time a news release is posted. There is no charge for the service, and you can unsubscribe at any time. The site is among the most visited of the RCMP's websites in Canada, receiving more than two million visits last year.

New Brunswickers can now also keep up to date with the RCMP in New Brunswick by subscribing to our RSS feed, or our Twitter and Facebook pages, which were launched in July 2010.

■ From the New Brunswick Minister of Public Safety

Becoming Canada's Safest Province

As Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General, I am quite proud of the very strong and collaborative relationship we have with the RCMP in New Brunswick.

New Brunswickers depend on the essential service provided by the RCMP, and we are very fortunate to work in partnership with them to find new and better ways to prevent crime, improve highway safety, and ensure our communities remain safe places to live and work.

As a government, we have committed to working closely with the RCMP in a number of important crime prevention and crime solving areas.

We are working to establish a provincial law enforcement task force to tackle the growing problem of online child predators by the end of 2011.

We are enhancing anti-bullying programs by working with principals, parents, teachers, students, and law enforcement on a multi-approach strategy to adopt best practices that will make our schools safer, more inclusive, and more supportive learning environments.

Our strategy will include adopting new tools and resources for dealing with behaviour issues, tougher rules for dealing with bullies and more support for victims.

We also have introduced legislation to make it illegal for drivers to text or use hand-held devices like cell phones while behind the wheel.

We take great pride in the strength of a vision that includes meaningfully engaging communities and community organizations in matters that affect their daily lives.

As our provincial police force, the RCMP is a critical stakeholder and partner in that process. They are in the front line of service delivery, and I look forward to working with them through the coming years as we identify ways to improve our justice system for the betterment of all New Brunswickers.

Thank you,
Hon. Robert B. Trevors

■ From the Commanding Officer

As New Brunswickers, we should be proud that we live in one of the safest areas in the world. Becoming Canada's safest province has become the goal of your Royal Canadian Mounted Police in New Brunswick. As you will read in the pages ahead, we have implemented a number of strategies which will better help us to solve crime, prevent crime, improve highway safety, and generally help New Brunswick citizens feel safer.

Of course, this does not mean that we are crime-free. Organized crime groups continue to operate within New Brunswick communities. There are criminals who exploit some of our most vulnerable citizens. In 2010, seniors made up nearly half of the province's fraud victims. Earlier this year, police in New Brunswick seized millions of images of child sexual abuse, one of the largest such seizures ever made in Canada. Police are also seeing more and more synthetic drugs turn up during seizures, drugs which are often targeted at young people.

While it is disheartening to hear of these things happening in our province, we do have the opportunity to reduce such crimes. However, becoming Canada's safest province is something the RCMP cannot achieve on its own. It requires the involvement of the citizens of New Brunswick. The RCMP is constantly forming partnerships with other law enforcement agencies and community organizations to address public safety issues. There is no question that reducing and preventing crime will lead to an improved quality of life for all New Brunswickers. That is a goal worth striving for, and I am confident it is achievable if we all work together.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank our partners and the citizens of New Brunswick. The RCMP enjoy tremendous support in New Brunswick, making it an excellent place to work and live.

Assistant Commissioner Wayne Lang
RCMP New Brunswick Commanding Officer

■ Criminal Operations

Measuring our Progress

For the past few years, the RCMP in New Brunswick has been working hard to create strategies to help our province become the safest in Canada. While there is currently no standardized tool used across the country to determine how safe a province is, we recognize that we must be able to measure and evaluate our progress and success to ensure we are deploying our resources efficiently and focusing on the areas that will go the furthest towards helping us achieve our goal. To help us in this regard, in consultation with external subject matter experts, the RCMP in New Brunswick has identified four key measures to help us determine how we compare to other Canadian provinces. Our progress in these areas can be measured drawing on data released by Statistics Canada and the Department of Transportation. Though “safety” is a very broad category, the four elements outlined below reflect areas in which police play a leading role, and are based on the RCMP’s vision of enhancing public safety and promoting safe communities.

Superintendent Wayne Gallant
Criminal Operations Officer

1) The volume and severity of police-reported crime

An important component of being the safest province involves having low crime rates. The RCMP in New Brunswick has implemented crime reduction strategies throughout the province, focused on those criminals and organized crime groups causing the most harm in our communities. We also work closely with community partners to intervene early with young people most at risk of becoming involved in criminal activity.

2) The amount and severity of crime solved by police

The rate at which crime is solved in any given jurisdiction will have an impact on the safety of that jurisdiction, potentially preventing criminals from reoffending. The RCMP ensures it is well-positioned to solve crimes by placing an emphasis on collaboration with our law enforcement partners, criminal analysis, and providing ongoing training to our investigators.

3) The number of injury and fatal collisions occurring on our roadways

A focus on reducing impaired driving and promoting seatbelt use through education and enforcement will help us contribute to reducing the number of injuries and fatalities that occur on our roadways. Among other initiatives, our officers conduct frequent check-stops, focus on enforcement of problem areas and the causes contributing to collisions, and continuously strive to promote safe driving practices.

Superintendent Wayne Gallant became the Officer in Charge of Criminal Operations for the RCMP in New Brunswick in May 2011 replacing Chief Superintendent Todd Shean. He has been promoted to the rank of Chief Superintendent.

Criminal Operations

4) Public perception of the criminal justice system and public safety

Recognizing that education and awareness are critical to fostering safer communities and preventing crime, the RCMP in New Brunswick is committed to ensuring members of the public have the information they need to help protect themselves from becoming victims of crime, as well as information about the role each individual can play in helping to make the province a safer place.

Becoming Canada's safest province is a long-term goal. Though we know our current efforts are making a difference, we want to see New Brunswick consistently at the top in all of these categories over the course of many years. Remaining focused on these four elements will help our officers continue to achieve strong results, but it is clear that the work of the police will not be the sole driving force in reaching our goal. It truly is a collaborative effort. I encourage you all to continue working with your local police to help identify community priorities and partnerships that will move us all closer to proclaiming New Brunswick the safest province in Canada.

Component	Current Rank	Previous Rank	Update
Crime Severity Index	3rd	4th	New Brunswick's Crime Severity Index between 2008 and 2009 decreased by 1%. Data for 2010 will be available in July 2011.
Weighted Clearance Rates	5th	5th	New Brunswick's weighted clearance rate between 2008 and 2009 increased by 5%. Data for 2010 will be available in December 2011.
Fatal Collision Rates	6th	8th	New Brunswick's fatal collision rate between 2007 and 2008 decreased by 28%. Data for 2009 is expected in December 2011.
Injury Collision Rates	6th	4th	New Brunswick's injury collision rate between 2007 and 2008 decreased by 1%. Data for 2009 is expected in December 2011.
Perception of Safety from Crime	2nd	2nd	The perception of safety from crime in New Brunswick has remained relatively constant between the surveys published in 2004 and in 2009. Updated data is expected in July 2014.

The data used by Statistics Canada and the Department of Transportation includes not only RCMP jurisdictions, but all New Brunswick police forces. Rankings include all provinces and territories.*

■ Focus on New Brunswick

The RCMP in New Brunswick focuses on provincial priorities laid out by the Province of New Brunswick. These are in addition to local priorities set in consultation with the communities we serve, and the RCMP's five National Priorities, which are reviewed and set annually by senior management. In 2010-2011, there were five national strategic priorities for the RCMP: Serious and Organized Crime, Youth, Aboriginal Communities, National Security, and Economic Integrity. As you will read, many provincial priorities closely resemble national priorities, and they frequently overlap and complement one another.

Crime Reduction: Safer Communities and Neighbourhoods

Once again, our communities have been identified by Statistics Canada as being among the safest in the country, and the RCMP in New Brunswick continues to promote proven crime reduction and prevention strategies, designed to increase public safety and reduce the number of people victimized by crime.

The New Brunswick RCMP's crime reduction strategy, focused on thorough intelligence analysis aimed at disrupting the activities of the chronic and repeat offenders causing the most harm to our communities, was first implemented in New Brunswick in 2007. Since then, the approach has consistently enabled us to achieve impressive results in property crime reduction throughout the province. Over the past year, the RCMP has successfully identified and arrested more than 350 chronic property crime offenders in New Brunswick. This is due in large part to the invaluable work being done by our team of crime analysts, who create reports identifying trends, patterns, and crime hot spots, which can also help forecast and prevent crime before it occurs.

Managing offenders once they have been released, to ensure they abide by court-ordered conditions, is also a key part of reducing crime. The RCMP throughout the province continue to place an emphasis on conducting curfew and street checks to ensure that these conditions are being met, while at the same time working with community and government partners to develop initiatives and programs to reduce the likelihood that criminals will reoffend upon release.

Youth-Oriented Community-Based Programs

Many of the chronic and repeat property crime offenders identified and arrested in 2010-2011 were young offenders. To address this reality, and reduce crime over the long term, the RCMP's Community Program Officers and frontline police officers in New Brunswick have taken on an increased role in preventing future crimes, by working with our partners to intervene early with youth at risk of being lured into illegal activities. Since December 2010, more than 50% of RCMP officers in New Brunswick have received risk screening training to help identify young people at risk, so that steps can be taken to direct them to the appropriate services before they commit a crime. Additional training has been provided on other techniques to assist in reducing youth recidivism, including the implementation of community-based Restorative Justice Committees and Youth Justice Forums. RCMP employees including frontline officers and investigators, Community Program Officers, and members of our Drugs and Organized Crime Awareness Services team have also continued offering presentations about drug use and abuse, online safety, and the dangers of impaired driving, among other issues, to students, parents and community leaders throughout New Brunswick.

Protecting Our Most Vulnerable Citizens

While we are very fortunate to live in one of the safest places in Canada, we know that criminals continue to exploit and victimize some of our most vulnerable citizens, including children and senior citizens. Some of the threats to these individuals come from criminals operating from a distance, such as sexual predators luring children over the Internet, or fraud artists conducting scams through e-mail or via telephone. Recognizing that prevention efforts are critical to effectively combating these crimes, we have increased our efforts to proactively raise awareness about Internet child exploitation and financial crimes, as well as other abuses committed against senior citizens.

■ Focus on New Brunswick

In March 2011, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Internet Child Exploitation unit (ICE), working in collaboration with other municipal police forces, conducted a series of searches leading to the arrest of four people from different New Brunswick communities, and made several seizures, including one of the largest collections of child sexual abuse images in Canada. Since that time, concerted efforts have been made to share practical information with parents about how they can protect their children from online predators, and collaborative efforts to educate youth about online safety are ongoing. A working group consisting of RCMP and municipal police forces throughout New Brunswick has also been formed, and efforts to establish a provincial law enforcement task force to develop a coordinated strategy to tackle this growing problem are currently underway.

Meanwhile, in 2011, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Commercial Crime Section (CCS) conducted its second month-long Fraud Prevention campaign, promoting a variety of useful tips and information about some of the frauds and scams most commonly targeting senior citizens, who accounted for nearly half of all fraud victims in New Brunswick in 2010.

Highway Safety

The overall safety of our roadways is one of the factors the RCMP takes into consideration when measuring its progress towards becoming Canada's safest province. In 2010, 80 people were killed on New Brunswick roadways, up from 57 in 2009. In almost 40% of those fatalities, alcohol is believed to have been a factor, compared to 25% the previous year. Of those killed, 40% were not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the collision. Efforts to reduce these numbers through both enforcement and education are ongoing. In 2010, RCMP laid more than 1,200 charges for impaired driving in New Brunswick, and tickets written for seatbelt violations increased by 12.5%.

While the police play a large role in patrolling highways and roads, conducting regular check stops and enforcing traffic laws, making our roadways the safest in the country will require a collective effort. In December 2010, at the official launch of New Brunswick's annual Operation Christmas road safety campaign, 16-year-old Kali O'Dell spoke to New Brunswickers about the role they can play in helping to ensure the roads we travel on are safe for all. In 2006, an impaired driver was responsible for a crash that killed Miss O'Dell's mother and father and caused her and her brother serious injuries. Her message struck a powerful chord: "I should still have a childhood but I don't. I don't want anybody else to have to live through this. Remember my family. Don't drink and drive."

In appreciation of her dedication and courage in sharing her story in order to raise awareness about the dangers and consequences of impaired driving, Ms. Kali O'Dell was presented with a Commanding Officer's certificate of appreciation this past January. She is shown here with Sgt. Claude Tremblay of the RCMP's Traffic Services.

In addition to enforcement efforts, the RCMP also continues to work with our community partners to offer a variety of educational programs and prevention programs including the Prevent Alcohol and Risk-Related Trauma in Youth (PARTY) program, Teens Against Drunk Driving (TADD), and Operation Red Nose.

As we move forward, we will continue to focus on education and enforcement efforts aimed at reducing the high risk behaviours contributing to collisions and injuries: impaired driving, seatbelt use, and aggressive driving. We continue to examine how we provide traffic services to ensure that we are providing the most effective service possible. We are also placing an increased emphasis on analyzing the factors involved in serious collisions, enabling us to better focus our efforts on those areas.

Combating Organized Crime and the Drug Trade

Organized crime groups are profit-driven. Though primarily associated with the drug trade, these groups are also frequently involved in contraband tobacco, firearms, human smuggling, prostitution, fraud, the sale of counterfeit goods, and other criminal activities. Most alarmingly, these groups often exploit young people, either by selling them dangerous drugs and illegal tobacco products in the hopes of expanding their market, or by luring them into criminal activities with the promise of easy money.

The RCMP in New Brunswick works closely with a wide variety of law enforcement, government, and community partners to identify and disrupt the criminal activities of those groups causing the most harm in New Brunswick. Regional Integrated Intelligence Units collect intelligence for analysis by crime analysts, to develop an evidence-based understanding of which organized criminal groups and activities pose the greatest risk to the safety and well-being of our communities. The RCMP then joins with other law enforcement agencies on integrated teams to investigate these criminal groups and bring them before the courts.

Focus on New Brunswick

In 2010, the RCMP in New Brunswick seized 23,000 marijuana plants from locations across the province during the outdoor growing season, a 53% increase over the previous year. The plants had the potential to produce more than 10 million joints. The RCMP believes that dismantling these operations is an important part of deterring organized crime from selling marijuana in our neighbourhoods, and attempting to profit from criminal activities in New Brunswick. Numerous indoor marijuana grow-operations, which pose significant health and safety risks to area residents, were also dismantled in 2010-2011.

Measures are also being taken to combat synthetic drugs, which include potentially lethal drugs like methamphetamine and ecstasy. Police are continuing to seize more of these types of drugs. In September 2010, to effectively combat this trend, the New Brunswick RCMP's Drug Section put together an enforcement team dedicated to targeting all levels of synthetic drug trafficking in the province, following the strategy set forth by the RCMP's national Synthetic Drugs Initiative. A wide variety of education and awareness presentations on the dangers of these drugs are also being offered to students and community groups throughout the province.

Organized crime groups continue to profit from the sale of illegal tobacco. In 2010, the RCMP in New Brunswick seized nearly 20,000 cartons of contraband tobacco, for a total of nearly 4 million illegal cigarettes.

Victim Services

The RCMP recognizes the importance of ensuring that victims of crime are provided with information, support and resources, not only to help them cope with the physical or psychological trauma they have experienced, but also to help them navigate and understand the criminal justice system. Over the past year, we have continued working to increase the number of referrals to the Provincial Victim Services program made by frontline police and employees, to address gaps in that area. Ongoing training for frontline police also remains a priority, and in 2010, a Victim Services module was incorporated into mandatory Violence in Relationships training throughout the Division.

Crime Stoppers in New Brunswick

Since 1985, Crime Stoppers has helped to solve thousands of cases in New Brunswick, many of which might otherwise have remained unsolved without information provided to the program. Information on unsolved crimes can be provided anonymously to Crime Stoppers by calling 1-800-222-TIPS. Information leading to an arrest may qualify for a cash award of up to $2,000.

Bilingual Service Delivery

Currently, more than 70% of all the positions in the RCMP in New Brunswick are bilingual. The RCMP continues to make sure the Force meets provincial language expectations by ensuring employees make an active offer of official language choice to clients, performing continual quality monitoring and providing language training. Over the past year, the RCMP has continued to offer a variety of language learning programs, including classroom, one-on-one and computer-based training to help employees learn or improve their English or French language skills.

Joint Technological Development

The RCMP in New Brunswick continues to seek innovative ways to securely share information and data with other police agencies in New Brunswick, and to participate in discussions with the New Brunswick Chiefs of Police, aimed at finding solutions to information-sharing challenges. The RCMP in New Brunswick and in the Atlantic Region also continue to be engaged in the Maritime Radio Communication Initiative, which seeks to establish a radio system enabling emergency personnel in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island to communicate across agencies and across boundaries.

Force Wellness

Fostering an engaged, inspired and healthy workforce is an important component of helping us to achieve our goal of becoming Canada's safest province, and the RCMP remains committed to improving workforce wellness for all of our employees. In 2010, a Resiliency Committee was formed to address issues surrounding operational stress injuries. Other groups including the Women's Advisory Committee and the Employee Advisory Committee continue to play a key role in ensuring that specific employee needs are recognized and addressed. In addition, a variety of initiatives including a mentorship program to help develop frontline supervisors, workshops for team leaders, and orientation packages for members new to their districts have been developed to assist employees making the transition into new roles or moving to new locations.

Ongoing Areas of Focus

First Nations Policing

In May 2010, Elsipogtog Elders presented Cpl. De-Anne Sack with the honour of carrying the Agenootoomagenapii Staff, in recognition of the contribution she has made to the well-being of their community. Cpl. Sack is a Mi'kmaq woman from the Shubenacadie First Nation, and has been working in Elsipogtog for six years as a District 5 RCMP member. This form of recognition reflects the RCMP's commitment to building strong partnerships with the First Nations communities it serves. Over the past year, the RCMP in New Brunswick has continued to work closely with First Nations communities on the implementation of a strategic five-year plan to help reduce and prevent crime in Aboriginal communities by helping to divert at-risk young people away from criminal behaviour by connecting them with the appropriate services and programs. Over the past year, the Commanding Officer's Aboriginal Advisory Committee, which is open to all First Nations communities policed by the RCMP, has met twice to discuss strategic direction, as well as to consult on various initiatives related to the plan.

Public Security

In November and December 2010, severe weather and floods throughout the province necessitated the implementation of numerous Emergency Operations Plans, and the RCMP in New Brunswick's Emergency Operations Center was called upon to work with municipal, provincial, federal and other law enforcement partners to help mitigate potential risks and threats to public safety in all affected communities. The RCMP in New Brunswick continues to work closely with the New Brunswick Department of Public Safety to develop and maintain up-to-date Operational Response and Readiness Plans addressing areas such as terrorism, major aircraft disaster, health emergencies/pandemics, incident management, and mobilization. In 2010-2011, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Operational Response and Readiness (ORR) team also assisted each RCMP district in New Brunswick in designing business continuity plans to ensure minimal disruption to police services and operations in the event of an arising emergency situation.

Our Commitment to Service

RCMP members and employees respond to tens of thousands of calls a year in New Brunswick. Those calls for service are always prioritized. When someone's life is in jeopardy, they are at risk of injury or there is a crime in progress, people are urged to call 9-1-1 and the RCMP will respond immediately. For those calls which do not require an immediate response (i.e., crimes which took place days earlier, calls for information), the RCMP has a toll free number: 1-888-506-RCMP (7267).

The Year Ahead

The RCMP in New Brunswick believes that every dollar spent on policing services is an investment in the long-term well-being and safety of our communities. Recognizing that the costs of policing, along with other emergency and government services, are among the most significant expenditures for municipalities, we will ensure that the public continues to receive an excellent return on their investment. In order to make the best possible use of resources, the RCMP will continue working with government and community partners to identify efficiencies, opportunities for integration and collaboration, and innovative solutions to policing challenges.

Over the past several years, our approach to crime reduction and prevention has achieved significant results, and we will continue to implement strategies aimed at lowering crime and victimization rates over the long term. Some of the areas the RCMP in New Brunswick will be placing particular emphasis on in the year ahead include investigations into child internet exploitation, combating the synthetic drug trade in our region, and reducing impaired driving and seatbelt violations through enforcement and education. We will also continue working closely with our partners to intervene early with at-risk youth, and to develop community-based Restorative Justice Forums for young people.

Though the current fiscal climate remains challenging, and will require continuous evaluation and critical assessment of our services, our primary focus continues to be public safety, protecting our most vulnerable citizens, and deterring and preventing crime. The RCMP is committed to helping New Brunswick become the safest province in Canada, and we will continue building the relationships and partnerships needed to achieve our goal.

Operational Support Services

Operational Support Services (OSS) units provide a wide range of specialized services to police throughout New Brunswick as part of the Provincial Policing Contract. OSS units investigate major and serious crimes including homicides and Internet child exploitation, respond to high-risk emergency situations, and provide an array of support services and expertise to frontline police officers and enforcement units.

The past year has been an extraordinarily busy one for members of the RCMP in New Brunswick's OSS units. Our Crisis Negotiation Team was deployed on ten occasions, our Emergency Response Team was deployed 18 times, including to the G8 summit in Ontario, and New Brunswick's Ground Search and Rescue team, composed primarily of volunteers, contributed close to 5,000 hours to nearly 90 searches conducted across the province. Meanwhile, employees working in the Violent Crime Linkage Analysis System (ViCLAS) centre analyzed nearly 225 violent crimes committed in New Brunswick, in order to identify possible offenders. The following highlights represent only a portion of the excellent results our units have achieved, and exemplify the invaluable role specialized support services play in solving crime, managing crises, and providing invaluable support to frontline investigators. A complete list of OSS services is available on page 2 of this report.

Major investigations and initiatives

Major Crime

In the past year, Major Crime employees once again demonstrated their expertise and commitment, as they investigated some of the most serious crimes committed in New Brunswick, including eight homicides that took place during fiscal year 2010-2011. In April 2010, Major Crime investigators also concluded an investigation spanning 15 years by laying charges in the 1995 double homicide of Mary Lou Barnes and her 12-year-old son Larry Mills Jr. in Sackville. That this matter was brought before the courts after such a long period of time is a testament to the perseverance and patience of investigators, determined to successfully solve even the most complex and difficult cases.

Unsolved Crimes

New Brunswick still has a number of outstanding homicide and suspicious death investigations, many of them dating back several years. To ensure that all avenues of investigation have been exhausted, a senior RCMP member has been tasked with reviewing each case in detail, in order to identify any possibility that the case could be resolved successfully. For information about these cases, please visit www.rcmp.ca/nb

Superintendent Greg Lawlor
Officer in Charge of Operational Support Services

Operational Support Services

Missing Persons

Over the past year, members of the New Brunswick Violent Crimes Linkage Analysis System (ViCLAS) team spearheaded a review of all missing person reports in New Brunswick. The data collected is now being reviewed by the Divisional Criminal Analysis Section (DCAS) to determine whether or not there are any trends or links which may not have been observed in the past.

Internet Child Exploitation (ICE)

In 2010-2011, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Internet Child Exploitation Unit continued to focus on protecting young people from online predators through enforcement, and ongoing efforts to raise awareness about Internet safety. In March 2011, ICE investigators, in conjunction with municipal law enforcement agencies across New Brunswick, conducted a series of searches resulting in the arrest of four people, and the seizure of what is believed to be the largest collection of child sexual abuse images ever seized in Canada. This year also saw the successful conclusion of Tracyville resident Michael Gilbert's prosecution. Gilbert was sentenced to fifteen years in jail for sexual assault and production of child pornography, by far the longest sentence imposed by the courts in New Brunswick for this type of offence.

Operational Response and Readiness (ORR)

In 2010, the Divisional Emergency Operation Center (DEOC) was activated twice, in response to serious weather events causing extensive flooding and damage in November and December. The team worked tirelessly during this event, relaying critical information to the front line and ensuring support services, including use of the RCMP's helicopter, were provided to communities in need.

Operational Communications

Many investigations begin with police receiving an emergency call. In 2010, the Operational Communications Centre, located in J Division Headquarters in Fredericton, handled more than 61,000 calls, nearly 45% of which were 911 emergency calls. In addition, OCC operators also assist employees and the front line by forwarding or dispatching calls, and relaying vital information on a round the clock basis.

The Year Ahead

As we move forward, OSS units will continue to enhance the services they provide by focusing on strengthening our partnerships with agencies including other police departments, and fire and ambulance services. Our ICE unit will also continue working to protect New Brunswick's young people from online predators and sexual offenders. We are also focused on ensuring that our members receive continuous training to ensure they have the skills they need to help prevent tragedies and solve serious crimes, in a fast-paced, constantly changing and increasingly global, technological landscape.

More than 120 volunteers work as Auxiliary Constables in New Brunswick. In 2010-2011, they contributed more than 16,000 hours of their time assisting the RCMP with community events, operations, and initiatives.

■ Federal Policing in New Brunswick

Federal policing works to disrupt and dismantle organized crime groups involved in drug trafficking, smuggling, contraband tobacco, money laundering, economic crime, and other inter-provincial and cross-border crime. In addition, federal police are enhancing the safety and security of New Brunswick, and helping to protect the vital economic and cultural relationship we share with the United States by contributing to secure borders and international waterways. Through the collective effort of more than 160 personnel working in more than 20 areas of specialization and expertise, with offices strategically located in all regions of the province, we frequently undertake investigations with integrated teams comprised of investigators from other RCMP districts, the Codiac Regional RCMP, and other municipal police forces.

The nature of federal policing sometimes makes us less visible to the public, but we are constantly working to reduce crime by bringing the highest levels of criminality to justice. We also lead integrated teams in support of municipal and provincial police operations, guided by information collected by regional intelligence units and interpreted by our divisional crime analysts. We share a common goal: helping New Brunswick become the safest province in Canada.

Major Operations and Initiatives

Combating Synthetic Drugs

In response to an increase in seizures throughout New Brunswick, our Drug Section established an enforcement team in September 2010, dedicated to targeting all levels of synthetic drug trafficking in the province, following the strategy set forth by the RCMP's National Synthetic Drugs Initiative. Recognizing that enforcement alone is not enough, our Synthetic Drugs Operations Coordinator also delivered numerous presentations in schools, universities, and communities across New Brunswick in an effort to raise awareness about the dangers of these drugs. In October 2010, we provided training and certification for the RCMP Atlantic Region Clandestine Lab Team and also trained firefighters, paramedics and chemical disposal technicians, who may be called to respond to the site of a synthetic drug lab.

Marijuana Eradication

In 2010, the Coordinated Marijuana Enforcement Team once again led the RCMP's annual outdoor marijuana eradication operation in New Brunswick, during the outdoor growing season. More than 23,000 marijuana plants were seized from numerous sites across the province. Each plant could have potentially produced up to 500 joints.

Financial Crime and Fraud Prevention

In 2010-2011, Proceeds of Crime investigators successfully assisted several municipal police forces and RCMP districts in the seizure of more than $275,000 in cash and assets from various criminal groups and individuals involved in crime, for forfeiture to the Attorney General of New Brunswick. Working with the RCMP in Hampton, investigators also concluded a two-year investigation into fraud, resulting in the return of more than $230,000 dollars to a private businessperson in the Sussex area. In addition, more than $150,000 and several homes and vehicles were seized for forfeiture to the Attorney General of Canada. Meanwhile, in addition to conducting several ongoing investigations, in March 2011, our Commercial Crime Section once again led a month-long prevention campaign aimed at providing New Brunswick citizens with the information they need to protect themselves from common frauds and scams.

Border Integrity

Once again, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Customs and Excise unit (C&E) played a key role in preventing large quantities of contraband tobacco, marijuana and other illegal drugs from circulating in our neighbourhoods by intercepting smugglers on our roadways and conducting investigations into criminal trafficking rings. In addition to seizing millions of illegal cigarettes and approximately 100 kilograms of marijuana, C&E investigators also made two significant cocaine seizures in downtown Moncton, both of which resulted in lengthy prison sentences for those attempting to smuggle the drugs. Also contributing to the integrity of our borders, RCMP members working with the Integrated Border Enforcement Team assisted in numerous cross-border investigations, including the timely interception of a U.S. fugitive wanted for sexual assault and rape at gunpoint, who had illegally crossed into New Brunswick in August 2010.

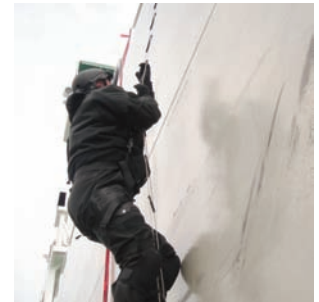

Counterfeit Goods

Recognizing the increasingly borderless nature of criminality, the RCMP in New Brunswick's Federal Enforcement Section participated in INTERPOL's annual counterfeit medicine initiative, Operation Pangea, in October 2010, by collaborating with Health Canada to conduct an information session for retirees on how to recognize the signs that a website may be selling counterfeit pharmaceuticals, and how to report suspicious websites to the authorities.

The Year Ahead

We will continue our focus on reducing crime by bringing the organized crime groups profiting from criminal activities in New Brunswick before the courts, and preventing them from causing further harm to our communities. Recognizing that we have an opportunity in New Brunswick to avert the damage other areas of Canada have experienced as a result of synthetic drugs, we will continue to place an emphasis on combating the synthetic drug trade through both enforcement and education initiatives. In addition, we will work to further advance the collaborative approach to border integrity we have established, working closely with U.S. agencies to help ensure the benefit of a secure border is maintained. We will also continue to lead the collective effort to excel at intelligence collection and crime analysis through the alignment of effort, training, tools, standards, and processes supporting criminal investigations, crime prevention, and traffic safety operations throughout the province.

■ Codiac Regional RCMP Inspector Marlene Snowman

Codiac employees and the citizens of Dieppe, Moncton, and Riverview once again have much to be proud of in their policing service for 2010. Operationally, it was one of the busiest years in Codiac's history. In addition to several major and complex investigations, the Codiac RCMP also developed a security plan for the IAAF World Junior Track and Field Games hosted by Moncton in July 2010. Representatives from the IAAF, participating countries, and local organizers gave rave reviews of how security was handled and on the overall success of the games themselves.

Despite the demanding operational tempo of 2010, our employees demonstrated tremendous dedication and ability to band together and work with the community to solve, deter, and prevent crime, once again making the communities served by the Codiac Regional RCMP among the safest in the country.

Our Priorities

Crime Reduction

Crime Reduction is now simply the way business gets done in Codiac. Our efforts with crime reduction continued to drive our property crime rates down by another 7%. This is particularly remarkable, given that many of the units normally devoted to crime reduction were also doing double duty by assisting with several major investigations for much of the year.

Safer Roads

In 2010, we participated in several successful anti-impaired driving campaigns, and placed particular emphasis on problem intersections and aggressive drivers. To read about our Safe Roads, Safe Communities campaign, please visit: www.rcmp.ca/nb/codiac

Youth

Preventing at-risk young people from becoming involved in more serious crime later in life will ultimately help us to reduce crime in the long term. Over the past year, we've achieved a 9% reduction in young people charged with crimes, and continued to work with our partners on the development of a focused Youth Intervention and Diversion strategy, including use of a risk-screening tool to aid with early intervention. We have also continued to place an emphasis on prevention by building strong partnerships with schools. Over the past year, several Codiac members from our Patrol, Traffic, and Police Dog Sections have participated in school initiatives, and the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program was delivered to most Grade 6 classrooms in the region.

The RCMP in Your Community

In December 2010, the City of Moncton concluded a rigorous review of policing services, consulting extensively with community and government partners. Meanwhile, Dieppe and Riverview also conducted policing reviews. Codiac worked hard to assist with this process by providing all information requested and outlining the scope of policing services currently provided to Moncton, Dieppe, and Riverview. It was ultimately recommended that Moncton retain the current policing model, a testament to the excellent service being provided by the Codiac Regional RCMP. Though this is encouraging, Codiac is committed to continuous improvement, and we are constantly assessing our service delivery model for possible improvements, in consultation with our community partners.

Inspector Marlene Snowman became the Officer in Charge of Codiac Regional RCMP in May 2011. She has been promoted to the rank of Superintendent.

■ Codiac Regional RCMP:

- Moncton
- Dieppe
- Riverview

The Year Ahead

Going forward in 2011-2012, Codiac will continue to focus on the priorities established through consultation with our partners in Moncton, Dieppe, and Riverview.

- We will place further emphasis on making Codiac's roads safer.
- We will continue to grow our crime reduction efforts.
- We will focus upon reducing the number of crimes against persons with a particular emphasis in ensuring our downtown core is the safest of any urban centre in the country.
- We will work to create safer environments for our young people by implementing a robust Youth Diversion strategy, and increasing our focus on Internet Child Exploitation.
- We will maintain and grow our focus on the efforts of organized crime, particularly as it relates to the illegal drug trade in Codiac.
- We will continue to support an engaged and healthy workforce committed to providing quality policing services to our communities in a manner that is as cost-efficient as possible.

■ District Policing

Over the next several pages, you will read about the exciting police work, issues and challenges that are being tackled in each of your areas by our district personnel. While each district adapts its strategies to meet the unique needs of the communities it serves, you will notice that the RCMP across New Brunswick shares a collective vision and a consistent approach to tackling the challenges we face.

Focus on the Front Line

New Brunswick's District Policing Program began in 1996, with the formation of what is currently District 8 in the Acadian Peninsula. Based on a regional policing model, each district consists of several detachments located within a specified geographic region of the province. Today, there are 11 RCMP Districts, or regional police forces, operating in New Brunswick. Each district is overseen by a District Commander, who is the RCMP equivalent of a Chief of Police, in charge of operations for that area. In addition to Codiac Regional RCMP employees, there are currently 550 frontline police officers, 17 Civilian Members, and nearly 100 Public Service Employees working and serving in communities throughout New Brunswick.

The District Policing Program strives to provide quality policing services in the most efficient and cost-effective manner possible. Like many government agencies, the current climate of fiscal restraint has led us to seek creative and innovative solutions to policing challenges, and to make the most of the resources we have. Our primary goal is to ensure that frontline police officers are able to focus as much time as possible on each community's policing priorities. Over the past year, several new support services have been implemented across New Brunswick to help ease the administrative burden placed on frontline officers, enabling them to spend more time conducting investigations, patrolling, and working directly with their communities.

■ District Policing

Recognizing that safe roadways are critical to achieving our goal of becoming Canada's safest province, we have also adapted our divisional Traffic Service delivery model to further enhance our ability to reduce the number of serious injury and fatal collisions that occur on roadways throughout the province.

In addition, many of our local priorities— traffic safety, crime reduction, youth and Aboriginal policing - are determined through a consultative process that involves meeting with community groups and leaders, along with our own employees. Each year, every District prepares an annual performance plan (APP), which determines their strategic direction for the year ahead, ensuring that the needs of the communities they police are addressed.

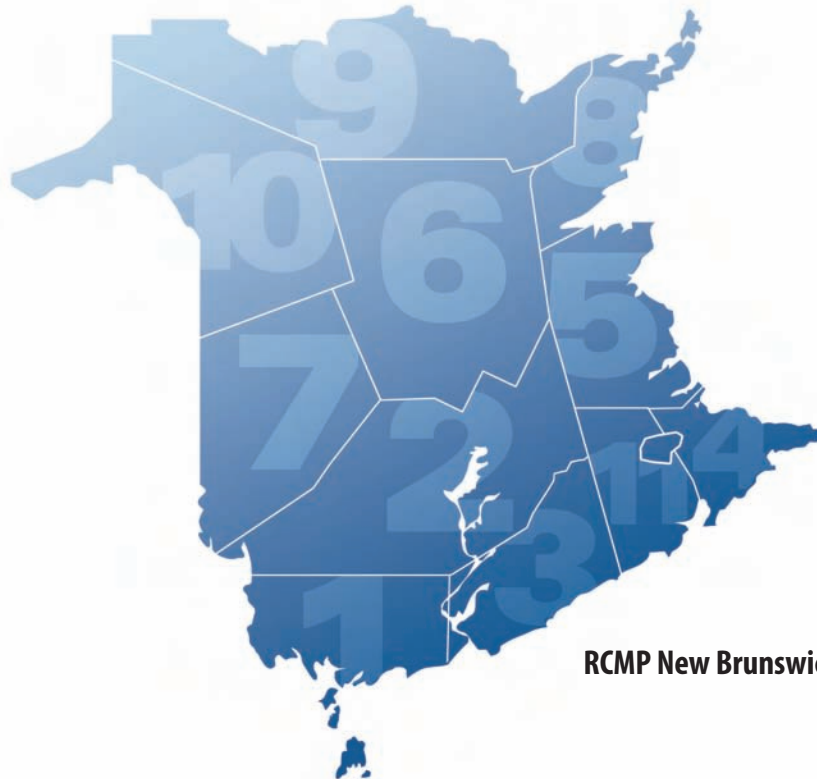

Ultimately, all of our efforts are aimed at helping to improve quality of life for all New Brunswick residents and visitors, by making our communities safe and secure places to live, work, or visit.

Creating Safe Communities

Throughout New Brunswick, district policing is dedicated to reducing and preventing crime in our communities by focusing on the small percentage of criminals responsible for causing the most harm. Our divisional crime reduction strategy, implemented in all districts, focuses on property crime offenders, drug dealers, and offenders breaching court orders. Overall, property related crimes in RCMP policed jurisdictions have dropped by 4% over the past three years. A province-wide initiative aimed at assessing the needs of young people at risk of becoming involved in crime is also currently being implemented in all RCMP districts in New Brunswick. The aim of this program is to prevent future criminality by diverting young people at risk from leading lives of crime. Many partnerships are currently being forged throughout the province to help us achieve this goal.

The Year Ahead

All districts will continue to focus on reducing and preventing crime, building strong relationships with our community partners, contributing to safer roadways, and working closely with young people to help them understand the dangers of illegal drugs, dangerous and impaired driving, bullying, online predators, and other risks to their safety. As we move forward, the District Policing program will continue working to find innovative ways to increase our efficiency, streamline our operational flexibility, and integrate our resources whenever possible.

RCMP New Brunswick Districts

■ District 1 - Charlotte and the Isles Staff Sergeant Larry MacDonald

The past year has been an extremely busy one for the RCMP in Charlotte and the Isles. In addition to our ongoing efforts to reduce, prevent, and solve crime, we also tackled serious crime investigations including an armed robbery at the St. Stephen Credit Union, and provided policing services for large events such as Atlanticade 2010 in St. Andrews and New River Beach's annual Sand Castle Day. We were also challenged in December 2010, when Charlotte County experienced some of the worst flooding in the region's recorded history. The RCMP helicopter was brought in, and our members worked closely with the Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) and a number of local agencies whose partnership proved invaluable as we worked to barricade roads, escort people to safety, monitor dams and watersheds, and to offer help and support to individuals who had lost their homes and possessions. Though our region suffered a great deal of damage, no lives were lost and no serious injuries were reported.

Our Priorities

Crime Reduction and Safer Roads

Over the past year, Charlotte and the Isles has achieved a 12% drop in property offences. Numerous individuals who failed to abide by the conditions of their probation or release have been arrested, with additional charges laid. In addition, our crime analyst was able to identify high risk areas for traffic offences in our region, and our members have completed check stops and increased traffic enforcement to reduce impaired, dangerous, or reckless drivers in these areas.

Drug Enforcement

Several operations and initiatives have been successful in disrupting the drug trade in our communities. In 2010, more than 700 marijuana plants were seized from various locations, and many search warrants resulting in illegal drug seizures have been executed on various residences and properties throughout the district.

Partnerships and Community

Throughout the past year, our Community Program Officer delivered nearly 200 presentations at schools throughout the region, on issues such as bullying and cyberbullying, and met with seniors to discuss preventing elder abuse and avoiding frauds and scams. In addition, we continued to work closely with at-risk young people, with the aim of diverting them from lives of crime by helping them to resolve the underlying issues leading them down the wrong path. We have also continued to partner with Crime Stoppers, and the Citizens on Patrol Group (COPS), who have proven to be a tremendous asset to the region. We have also recently introduced a Neighbourhood Watch Program in the Blacks Harbour and Musquash areas.

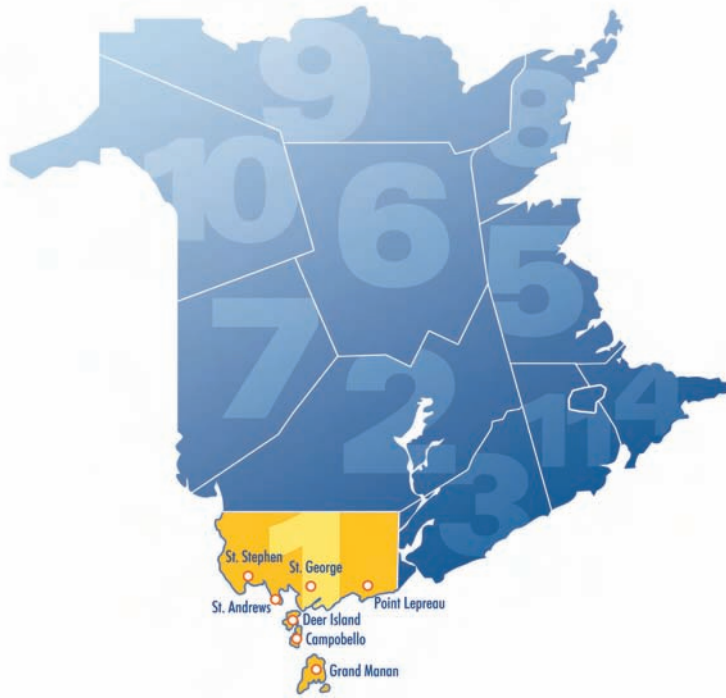

The Year Ahead

On behalf of District 1 RCMP, I would like to thank the citizens of Charlotte and the Isles for their tremendous assistance and support. Your collective efforts have truly made a difference. We will continue to build on our successes in crime reduction and prevention, and will work to strengthen and maintain our partnerships with local agencies and community groups. We look forward to continuing to work with our partners and the public to help make our region a very safe place to live and work.

■ District 2 - Oromocto Inspector Mike O'Malley

It has been another busy year for the RCMP members and employees working in your communities. On behalf of District 2, it is my pleasure to present a review of the results we have achieved towards our local policing priorities, as we continue to build on our success, and contribute to the goal of making New Brunswick the safest province in Canada.

Our Priorities

Drug Enforcement and Drug Education

In 2010-2011, we surpassed the number of search warrants executed in the area compared to previous years, thanks to the efforts of many members. These warrants succeeded in preventing large quantities of drugs from circulating in our communities, and resulted in more than 100 drug trafficking and production charges. On the prevention side, our employees provided 25 drug awareness presentations to students and their parents in schools throughout the area.

Reduce Property Crime, in Particular Vandalism and Break and Enters

Reducing the number of people victimized by property crime remains one of our policing priorities. Though our region did see a slight increase in break and enters, which rose from 258 to 289, investigators were able to successfully solve a large percentage of these crimes. We also focused on providing the public with information to help them protect themselves from becoming victims of crime by locking their doors to prevent crimes of opportunity, and encouraging people to report any suspicious activity to police.

Youth at Risk Engagement

We have continued our efforts to help divert young people away from leading lives of crime. Over the past year, we have implemented a new Risk Screening Tool to help us identify those youth who are at a greater risk of becoming involved in criminal activity. Working with our community partners and existing programs, these young people are being directed to services and programs that can provide guidance and help them resolve the issues influencing their decisions and behaviours.

Improve Public Safety on District 2 Highways

Over the past year, more than 450 checkpoint operations were conducted in all communities. Nearly 420 tickets for seatbelt infractions were issued, and a December 2010 survey revealed a seatbelt compliance rate of 92.6% in our area. In addition, nearly 150 impaired drivers were stopped from driving. Moving beyond our primary roads and highways, we also patrolled the trails using all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles, and conducted boat patrols. In addition to our enforcement efforts, we have continued working to raise awareness about the serious risks of impaired driving and not wearing a seatbelt.

The Year Ahead

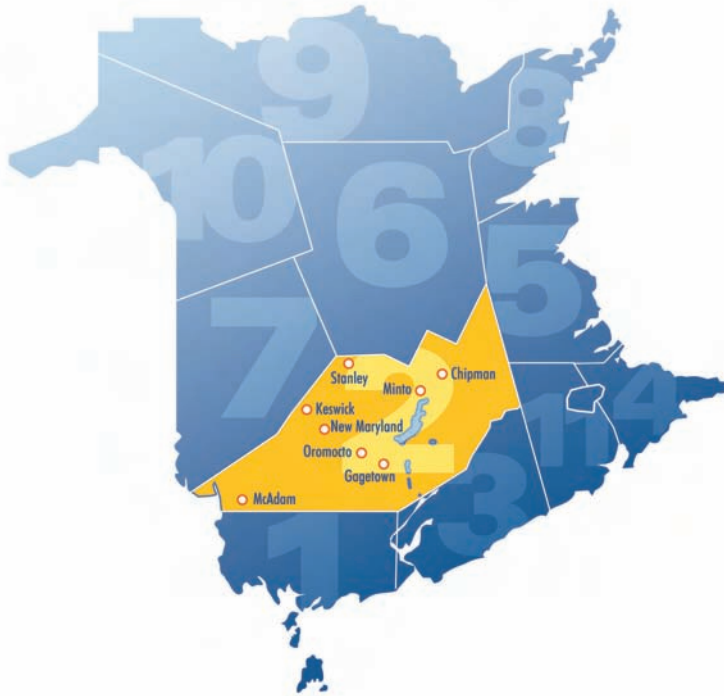

Our priorities for the year ahead were set in consultation with the Community Council Policing Committee (CCPC), which is comprised of mayors, councillors, Local Service District Representatives, and District 2 RCMP members. As always, we will continue our efforts to reduce crime throughout our district through a combination of enforcement, directed patrols, and crime prevention initiatives.

Another objective will be to develop a communications strategy to help share our successes and information about our efforts to help make our communities safe and secure places to live. We will also focus on community engagement, working closely with our partners and the public to help resolve crime problems in our area. Substance abuse education will also be a priority, as this continues to be a driver of criminal activity. Together with the CCPC and other stakeholders, we will develop and implement awareness sessions targeting those at greatest risk. We look forward to continuing to provide quality policing services, and making our communities even safer places to live.

District 3 - Kennebecasis Inspector John Warr

On behalf of District 3 Kennebecasis employees, I am pleased to be able to share with you the results of our efforts in 2010-2011. This past year brought with it many challenges, but our employees have worked tremendously hard to deliver some very impressive results. Following extensive consultations with our communities, we have developed a strategic plan focusing on three main priorities: reducing the abuse of drugs, improving road safety, and crime reduction.

Our Priorities

Reducing the Abuse of Drugs

Our strategy to help reduce the abuse of drugs is three-pronged, consisting of education, early intervention with at-risk youth, and enforcement efforts. Over the past year, Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) presentations on the dangers of drug abuse were given at 13 schools throughout our region, and we continued to champion a Restorative Justice approach for youth, referring them to appropriate community organizations, both to hold them accountable for their actions and to reduce their risk of reoffending. In terms of enforcement, a concerted effort to increase our intelligence gathering capabilities has enabled us to triple the number of criminal charges brought against drug traffickers in our region over the past year.

Road Safety

In an effort to reduce serious injuries and fatalities from collisions, over the past year we have focused on seatbelt use, impaired and aggressive driving. We set ambitious enforcement targets, which we surpassed by issuing 5876 traffic charges and warnings in our area. We also made a concerted effort to communicate the risks of failure to wear a seatbelt by delivering numerous school presentations and issuing frequent news releases about the factors contributing to collisions, injuries, and fatalities in our region.

Crime Reduction

Recognizing that property crime continues to be a serious concern in our communities, we set the very ambitious goal of reducing property crime by 15% in 2010-2011. By focusing strategically on the small number of criminals committing the most crime in our communities, conducting curfew checks on offenders released on conditions or parole, and conducting preventive patrols in crime hot spots identified by our crime analyst, we made great strides towards reaching our goal. Property crime rates have dropped by 6% in the past year, which translates into 74 fewer break and enters, acts of mischief, thefts, frauds, and arsons.

The Year Ahead

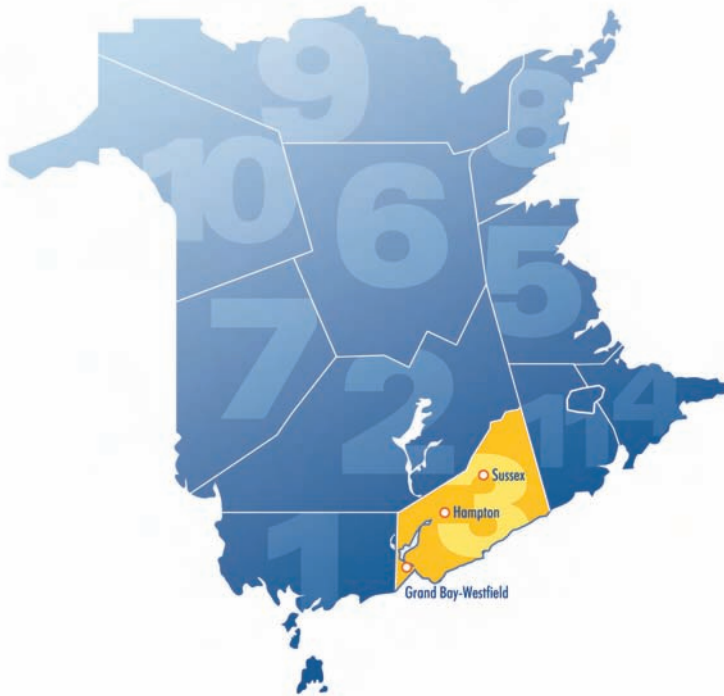

The input of our community partners in the development of our priorities ensures our policing program is truly responsive to our communities. In March 2011, we met with representatives from area Local Service Districts, Mayors, and councillors to discuss the past year's results and to develop our priorities for the next year. It was agreed that we would continue our efforts to reduce property crime, to target drug traffickers and impaired drivers, and to develop early intervention initiatives for youth that are at high risk of becoming involved in crime. We continuously examine our performance and look for ways to improve our services. Our goal is to deliver not just a good service but an excellent one. Through the implementation of evidence-based strategies and the continued hard work of our employees, we will continue to keep District 3 one of the safest places to live in New Brunswick.

■ District 4 - South East Inspector Tom Critchlow

Over the past year, the RCMP in District 4 has worked hard to enhance our effectiveness by turning challenges into opportunities for innovation and collaboration with our partners and the public. It was a busy year in District 4, and our members once again proved their dedication and commitment as they investigated, and ultimately solved, major crimes including two homicides and one attempted murder. In addition, our crime reduction strategies continued to prove successful, and we have made significant progress on the priorities laid out in our Annual Performance Plan: visibility, crime reduction, drug abuse, and traffic.

Our Priorities

Visibility and Property Crime Reduction

As part of our commitment to maintaining high police visibility, members conducted nearly 200 foot patrols throughout District 4 in 2010-2011. These efforts, coupled with our crime reduction strategies, have enabled us to successfully arrest 41 of the most active offenders in the region. Crime reduction and prevention efforts focus on those offenders currently committing the most crimes in our communities, while also aiming to divert at-risk youth away from the criminal justice system. For example, in Sackville, a rash of thefts from vehicles was successfully solved with the arrest of three people under the age of 18. These youths were diverted through a Restorative Justice forum, wherein community members assisted in determining an appropriate restitution process. Fifteen such Restorative Justice forums have been conducted in District 4 over the past year.

In addition, each school in District 4 was again assigned a police officer liaison. Together with our Community Program Officer, these officers have been actively involved in school activities, including school “lock down” exercises and School Action for Emergencies (SAFE) plans, and have conducted more than 150 education and awareness presentations about subjects such as drugs and impaired driving.

Reducing the Abuse of Drugs

In April 2010, District 4 formed a Street Crime Unit comprised of two regular members from the Shediac and Sackville detachments to focus on dismantling marijuana grow operations and to deter drug trafficking. This team executed 20 residential drug search warrants and dismantled 12 grow operations contributing to more than 125 drug charges in the past year. Additionally, more than 25 drug presentations were delivered to schools and community groups, and six five-week Positive Choices sessions were delivered within the district. Positive Choices is a five-week program aimed at giving young people the tools they need to make healthy and positive decisions.

Safer Roads

Safe roadways are integral to the overall safety of our region. In 2010, District 4's Dedicated Traffic Unit participated in a pilot project with RCMP Districts 5 and 11, forming a cohesive team focused on reducing fatal and serious injury collisions, with an emphasis placed on aggressive and impaired driving, along with seatbelt use. This initiative resulted in 82 impaired driving charges, 1292 speeding tickets, and 325 occupant restraint tickets.

The Year Ahead

Due to the success of the integrated traffic pilot project in the Southeast region, the upcoming year will see the introduction of an independent, provincial traffic unit focused solely on highway safety and interdiction. We will also continue to focus on early intervention for at-risk young people, including use of a risk-screening tool to better determine the level of risk for each individual, in order to identify which programs are most suited to reduce their likelihood of reoffending.

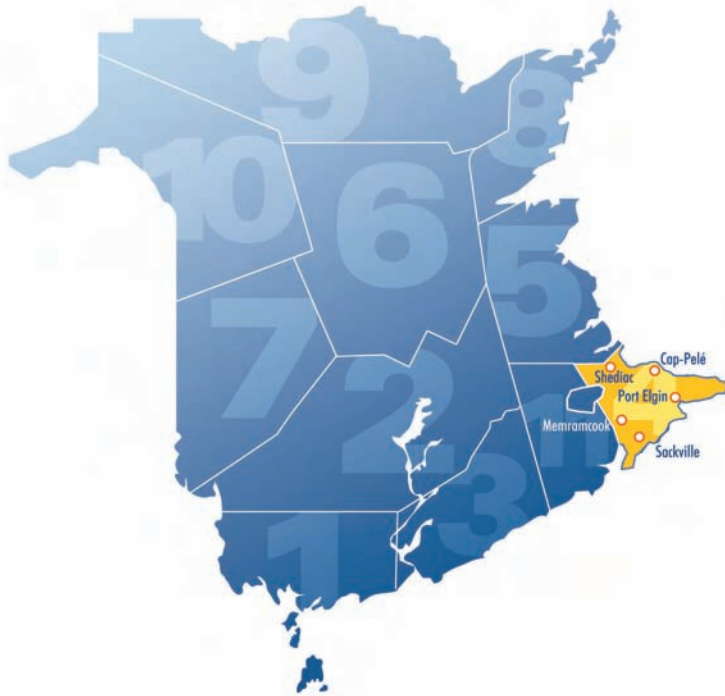

Inspector Marlene Snowman became the Officer in Charge of Codiac Regional RCMP in May 2011. Inspector Tom Critchlow succeeds her as District Commander.

■ District 5 - Kent Inspector Michel Saurette

As the District Commander of District 5 Kent, it is my pleasure to present to you our 2010-2011 Year in Review. Despite a year marked by several challenges, the dedication and resilience of all RCMP employees permitted us to forge ahead and again achieve, and in many cases surpass, all goals and objectives that had been set at the start of the year. As in previous years, none of our successes would have been possible without the support of the public and our community partners.

Our Priorities

Crime Reduction

Building on the previous year's reduction of 15% in property crime and 11% in theft under $5,000, this year saw a further 3% decrease in property crime offences and a 4% decrease in crimes against persons, a three-year low for this type of offence.

Youth

Once again, our Community Program Officer has been instrumental in continuing to build partnerships throughout our region. In 2010, 15 people attended a three-day Restorative Justice Workshop, and received professional training to become Community Justice Forum Facilitators. These facilitators will prove critical to helping us to continue finding innovative and community-based ways to hold young people accountable for criminal behaviours, ultimately diverting them from leading lives of crime through early intervention. Additionally, our employees delivered more than 130 presentations on drug abuse prevention and other topics throughout the school year to students, parents, seniors and various community groups within our area. School Action for Emergencies (SAFE) plans were also completed for the 21 schools in our area, to ensure police and frontline workers are prepared to respond efficiently and effectively in the case of serious incidents at our schools.

Road Safety

In 2009-2010, the district took an even more direct approach in its fight against drinking and driving, by creating a Chronic Repeat Impaired Driver List. Using an approach similar to our crime reduction strategy, we also piloted a new initiative aimed at reducing impaired driving in our region. With the goal of making our roads the safest in New Brunswick and Canada, we also continued working to proactively remind citizens that seatbelts save lives, both through enforcement and education initiatives.

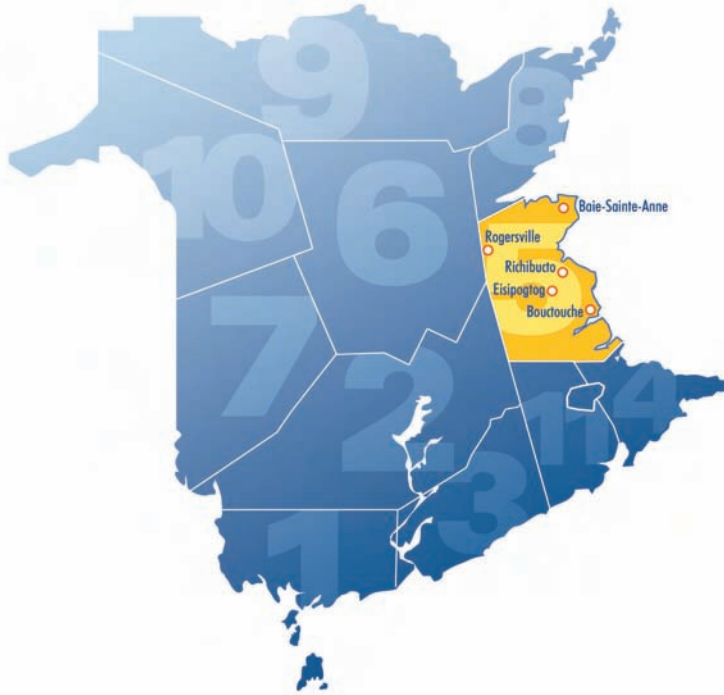

The Year Ahead

Looking forward, we are continually expanding crime reduction initiatives throughout the district by implementing new training for all frontline officers, while enhancing our strategic operational focus on the offenders committing the most crimes in our communities. We will also continue to focus on creating the safest roadways in Canada by deterring impaired driving and enforcing seatbelt use. In addition, we will continue working to reduce the damage caused by illegal marijuana grow operations in our area. Our goal is to help create a community where all residents feel safe and secure, and to continue working with our partners and the public to make New Brunswick the safest province in Canada.

District 6 - Miramichi Staff Sergeant Greg Grant

On behalf of District 6 Miramichi RCMP, I am pleased to present a review of the progress made on our policing priorities in 2010-2011. Over the past year, we have built on our past successes, and continued to make the communities of Blackville, Sunny Corner, Doaktown, Upper Miramichi and surrounding areas safe and secure places to live. Our progressive, intelligence-led approach to policing has continued to achieve excellent results in reducing property crime, reducing the abuse of drugs, and increasing safety on our roadways.

Our Priorities

Reducing Property Crime

Reducing property crime complaints, including theft, vandalism and break and enters continued to be our number one priority in 2010-2011. Our crime analyst conducted ongoing reviews of the trends and occurrences taking place in the district, enabling us to focus on those few offenders committing the most crimes in our area, and leading to the arrest of more than 30 active criminals. This method of proactive policing enabled us to once again reduce property crime rates this year, by 8%, for a total reduction of 21% over the past two years.

Reduce the Abuse of Drugs

Drug enforcement and education efforts also contributed to reducing property crimes, many of which are committed by drug users seeking to fund their drug purchases. Over the course of the past year, our members executed 19 search warrants, dismantling several marijuana production operations in District 6, and reducing the amount of illegal drugs circulating in our communities. In addition, several of our frontline police officers and our Community Program Officer offered more than 30 educational presentations to young people in our communities about the dangers of drug use and abuse.

Safety on our Roadways

People not wearing seatbelts and impaired driving continue to be the biggest contributing factors to the number of fatalities and serious injuries on roadways in our communities. As such, one of our key priorities was to reduce serious injuries or deaths by increasing the seatbelt use rate among citizens in our area, and working to decrease impaired driving rates through a combination of enforcement and education. In addition to ongoing enforcement initiatives, frontline members and our Community Program Officer also delivered seatbelt safety and impaired driving educational programs to various community groups, including local schools and senior citizens' groups.

The Year Ahead

It is our hope that the work we have done to reduce property crime, drug trafficking and abuse, and dangerous driving practices has contributed to increased feelings of safety in the communities we serve. As we move forward, we will continue to keep a close eye on those offenders committing the most crimes in our region, seeking innovative ways to reduce all crime. We will also continue to work closely with community and other law enforcement partners to reduce the abuse of drugs, and deter dangerous driving practices. All of our efforts have the ultimate goal of making our communities safe and secure places to live, contributing to the RCMP in New Brunswick's goal of becoming the safest Canadian province.

■ District 7 - Carleton-York Staff Sergeant Mitch MacMillan

On behalf of District 7 Carleton-York RCMP, I am pleased to present the following review of the excellent work being done in our region. Partnership has remained a critical part of our approach to making our communities safer, and our integration with the Woodstock Police Force has enabled us to reach beyond our borders and assist in crime reduction throughout Carleton and York Counties.

Our members continue to be very involved in their communities by contributing several hundred hours each year of volunteer time to various causes, including coaching swimming, martial arts, hockey, soccer, and cadets, as well as participating in church leadership boards and local school advisory committees. We look forward to continuing to work together to make Carleton-York the safest district in the safest province in Canada.

Our Priorities

Crime Reduction

Working closely with the Woodstock Police Force, we have had much success in our crime reduction efforts over the past year. Members from both police forces worked in collaboration on major files and in the execution of search warrants, traffic stops, and on bed-checks on criminals who are on probation with curfews and conditions. Sharing intelligence and information has allowed us to be more successful in our efforts to solve crime and conduct search warrants, focusing on those offenders causing the most serious harm to our communities, whether by committing property crimes or creating and feeding serious addictions by trafficking drugs.

Youth

Over the past year, we implemented the most recent phase of our crime reduction strategy, which involves taking a proactive approach and attempting to prevent future crime by focusing efforts on youth at risk. Through community partnerships, and with the help of a new risk assessment tool, we are working to provide young people at risk with the necessary support and guidance to help steer them away from criminal activities.

Roadway Safety

In an effort to make our roadways safer, our district once again adopted a two-pronged approach involving both enforcement and education. In the past year, more than 100 impaired drivers in our region were charged, marking a significant increase over the previous year. We also continued working to raise awareness about the importance of wearing a seatbelt. Surveys have indicated that our region enjoys 94% seatbelt compliance, which is one of the highest in New Brunswick. Nevertheless, even one serious injury or fatality that could have been prevented by wearing a seatbelt is too many, and our efforts to encourage safe driving practices are ongoing.

The Year Ahead

In 2011-2012, we will continue to engage community stakeholders through our Carleton-York Police Community Liaison Committee, comprised of the Carleton-York RCMP management team and delegates from 17 councils and Local Service Districts. We will continue to partner with other mandated agencies on our youth objective, and we will also be evaluating our progress on this objective by observing recidivism rates in the next year. We believe that by identifying the root causes of crime, and providing assistance through partner agencies, we will prevent some young people from becoming prolific offenders or engaging in criminal activity. We will also continue to target prolific offenders and drug dealers in our communities in order to further reduce and prevent crime.

District 8 - Acadian Peninsula Inspector Marc Bertrand

The year 2010-2011 was a busy one for the Acadian Peninsula RCMP. We successfully met the three objectives we had established for 2010-2011: road safety, the fight against organized crime and crime reduction through work by our members in the schools and the community. These priorities, established in consultation with the populace, matched those of the RCMP for all of New Brunswick.

Our Priorities

Youth

Our members made more than 225 presentations in schools or the community on important topics such as drugs and alcohol, bicycle and road safety, bullying and cyberbullying, Internet security, violence and the law. They also served on a number of committees working against violence and for the well-being and safety of our young people. Our young people also benefited from a new program called Intersection, whose goal is to reduce arrest and reoffending rates among teenagers between the ages of 13 and 16. Over the next three years, 150 young people will benefit from this program offered by the Acadian Peninsula Volunteer Centre, in partnership with the community and the RCMP. Our region was also the focus of a study conducted by New Brunswick's ombudsman on the work being done to keep youth out of prison.

Road Safety

The members of the traffic unit took part in school prevention activities for an accident-free graduation. They also organized a number of checkpoint operations to check motorists' papers with a view to preventing traffic accidents.

Crime Reduction

In 2010-2011, there was a decrease in the number of break-and-enters, which dropped from 251 last year to 209 this year, and an increase in the number of search warrants. We attribute this success to local residents who provided over 1,140 tips, leading to arrests and searches. The community plays a huge role in crime reduction, and it is by working together that we can make our region the safest in the province.

Organized Crime

It is important to make sure our region remains unattractive to organized crime. Though organized crime is often associated with drug trafficking, its members are profit-oriented and often participate in other criminal activities in our communities, such as the illicit tobacco and arms trade, prostitution, and fraud. Street crime unit members executed 42 search warrants in 2010-2011, seizing drugs and recovering stolen goods.

The RCMP in the Community

In 2010, several members of our district were recognized for their work in the community. New Brunswick's Minister of Public Safety and Solicitor General presented our community program officer with a certificate of recognition for his work in crime prevention and two of our officers with certificates for their work in promoting awareness, education, and crime prevention through a weekly live radio program.

Over the course of the past year, our members also worked in partnership with hospitals and government institutions to develop a memorandum of understanding with the goal of providing better service to patients with mental health problems.

The Year Ahead

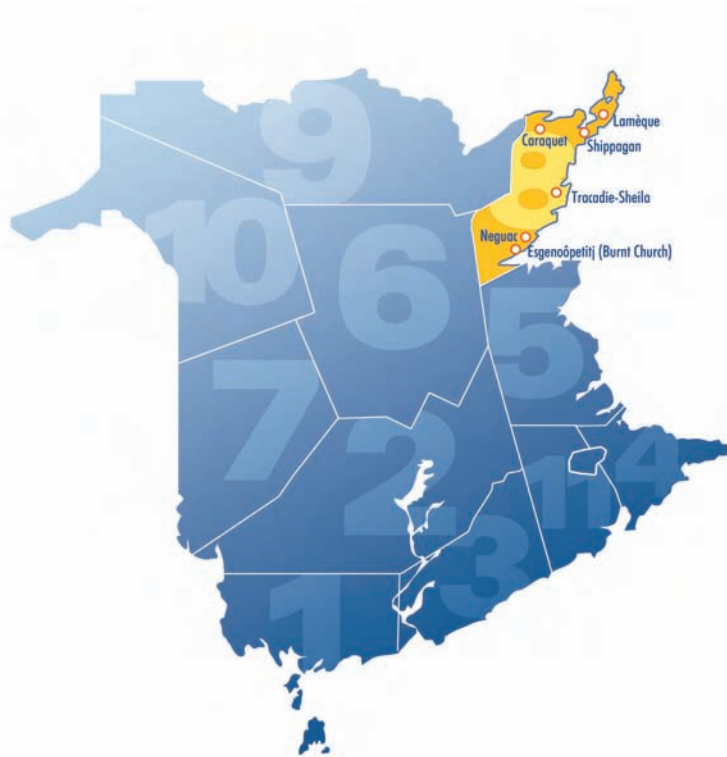

In the coming year, we will focus our efforts on road safety and crime reduction, as well as on the distribution of images depicting children being sexually exploited, domestic violence, and an increased presence in our 25 schools.

In May 2011, former District Commander Inspector Roch Fortin retired. Inspector Marc Bertrand succeeds him as District Commander.

■ District 9 - Restigouche-Chaleur Inspector Marc Landry

Over the course of the 2010-2011 year, the RCMP District 9 Restigouche-Chaleur has continued to make progress on a number of fronts. More specifically, successes were achieved on priorities such as organized crime, crime reduction, and youth.

Our Priorities

Organized Crime

In consultation with our communities, fighting organized crime was deemed to be a strategic priority for District 9, and this is an area where significant successes were achieved. The district has enhanced its focus on its ability to gather intelligence, and take steps to disrupt those involved with organized crime. In 2010-2011, the district executed 49 search warrants for drug trafficking and production offences, representing an increase of 90%. These produced some noteworthy seizures of pills, methamphetamine and marijuana plants in 2010. A number of projects targeting the production of marijuana resulted in more than 10,000 marijuana plants being seized, and one investigation with over 4,200 methamphetamine pills seized.

Youth

District 9 has continued its efforts to educate and increase awareness by working with community stakeholders in providing a wide range of services to our youth. In addition to Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE), other programs offered included Prevent Alcohol and Risk-Related Trauma in Youth (PARTY), Cyber Bullying, Positive Choices, and others. District 9 employees dedicated a lot of time to working and interacting with youth through programs, sports, and social events. In 2010-2011 District 9 implemented a multi-agency youth intervention and diversion committee that will focus on youth at risk, including the introduction of a risk screening tool which will assist officers in referring youth to appropriate services.

Crime Reduction

The emphasis on crime reduction initiatives has provided impressive all around results for District 9 in 2010-2011, with a 2% decrease in property crime since last year. Officers from the Restigouche-Chaleur region have been able to achieve a number of successes by arresting and charging a number of prolific offenders, while enhancing or implementing a number of initiatives aimed at increasing compliance with existing court-imposed conditions on offenders. We have also increased our visibility in areas known to attract higher levels of crime, and we continue to work closely with our crime analyst to identify and respond to new and developing crime trends within the region.

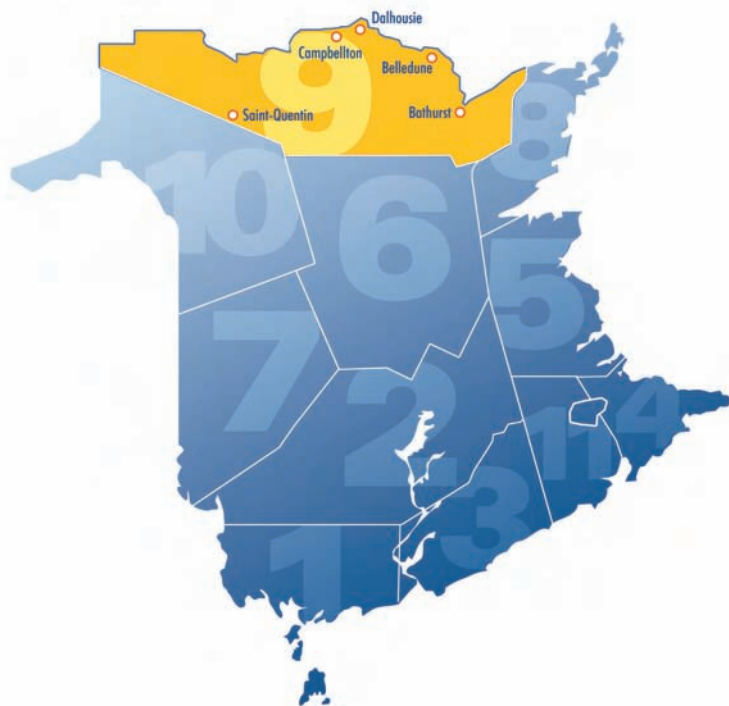

The Year Ahead

For 2011-2012, District 9 looks forward to continuing to work closely with our communities, as we strive to reduce crime rates and make New Brunswick the safest province in the country. District 9 is proud of the successes achieved in the past year, and we believe we can sustain and improve upon these positive results. Public consultations in setting district priorities, improving our intelligence gathering and sharing processes, and strategically deploying resources to focus on people, places, or things known to cause or attract crime will all contribute to safer communities. Support from our communities, stakeholders, and the dedication of our employees are all significant factors in our past and future successes.

■ District 10 - Madawaska-Victoria Staff Sergeant Joe Themens

On behalf of the Madawaska-Victoria RCMP, I am very pleased to present our Year in Review for 2010-2011. Building on partnerships and working with community organizations and partners enabled us to achieve a number of successes over the past year. We remain committed to helping reduce and prevent crime by focusing on communication, integration, education, and enforcement.

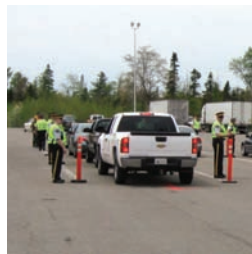

Our Priorities

Crime Reduction

During the past year, our members and employees have conducted strategic operations including curfew checks, search warrants, check stops in high crime areas, and crime analysis in an effort to reduce crime. Throughout the year, our Community Program Officer (CPO) delivered more than 50 drug awareness presentations to a wide variety of audiences including students, adults, and community and corporate groups in an effort to educate and minimize the abuse of drugs. More than 1,000 people participated in the presentations.

Safety on our Roadways

In April 2010, the District 10 Dedicated Traffic Unit and the Grand Falls Roving Traffic Unit (RTU) became integrated as part of a pilot project. The new unit has proven very successful, issuing more than 1250 speeding tickets and 133 seatbelt violation tickets and warnings in the past year, as well as laying more than 80 charges of impaired driving. In addition, the unit assisted with 12 contraband tobacco seizures, and intercepted significant amounts of illegal drugs including marijuana, hashish, and methamphetamine.

Engaging Youth at Risk and Aboriginal Policing

This year, several District 10 employees, including our Community Program Officer (CPO) received training that will assist them in taking on an increased role in the process of obtaining referrals to community intervention and diversion programs for young people at risk of becoming criminal offenders. The RCMP's long term goal is to work with our partners to divert these young people away from leading lives of crime. This approach will also be championed as we work to enhance and build better and stronger relationships with the Aboriginal community and Aboriginal youth at risk.

The Year Ahead

The Madawaska-Victoria RCMP is committed to helping New Brunswick become the safest province in Canada, and we will continue to focus on reducing and preventing crime, enforcing traffic laws, and conducting education and awareness presentations. But we know that we cannot achieve our goal alone, and as such, we will continue to work closely with our community partners and members of the public. Everyone has a role to play, and we encourage all community leaders and concerned citizens to reach out to us and share ideas about how we can continue to build on our successes, and make our communities and roadways safer for all.

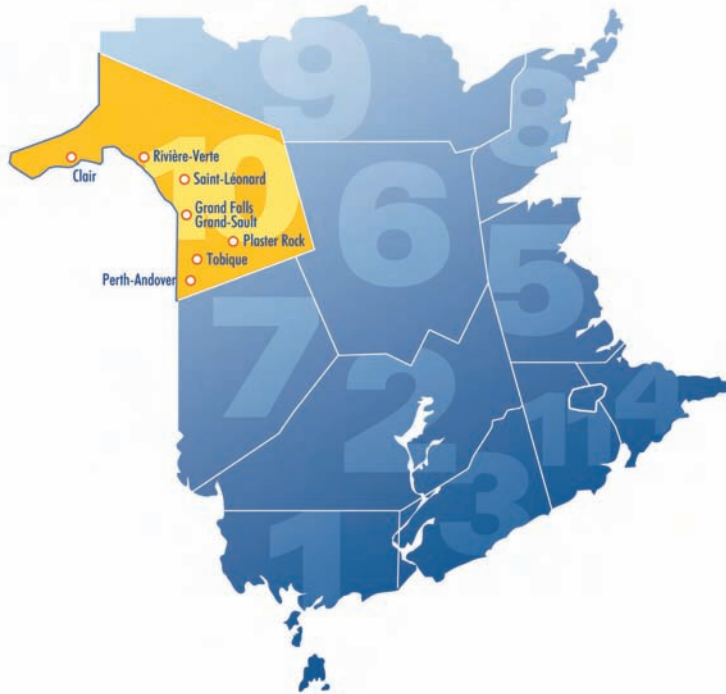

Organized Crime

District 10 continued working to disrupt and dismantle organized crime groups in partnership with the Edmundston and Grand Falls Police Forces. Over the past year, 21 search warrants were executed, targeting drug traffickers, marijuana grow operations, and synthetic drugs. In August and September of 2010, more than 6,000 marijuana plants were seized throughout the district, enough to produce up to 3 million marijuana joints. These efforts resulted in numerous criminal charges for possession, trafficking, and cultivation.

■ District 11 - Caledonia Staff Sergeant Gerry Belliveau

The District 11 Caledonia RCMP is pleased to present our district's Year in Review for 2010-2011. This past year, members continued to build on and embrace a collaborative, community-based approach. In consultation with our partners, our district strategically identified three priorities in addition to general duty and community policing. These additional areas of focus - traffic safety, organized crime, and crime reduction - enhanced our efforts to help make New Brunswick the safest province in Canada.

Our Priorities

Traffic Safety

This year, District 11 members embraced a more focused approach, and increased police visibility by strategically identifying problem areas on our roadways. Several Selective Traffic Enforcement Programs (STEP), check points, and community education and awareness presentations occurred throughout the district over the course of the year. As a result of our efforts, the number of tickets issued and charges laid for Motor Vehicle Act infractions nearly doubled in comparison to previous years.

Organized Crime and Crime Reduction

Members of our General Investigation Section (GIS) were proactive in their efforts to identify, monitor, and disrupt known local offenders, which resulted in several drug and stolen property seizures. We also conducted numerous checks on repeat convicted criminals to ensure compliance with court probation orders. Working closely with our crime analyst, we focused on intelligence-led initiatives and investigations, and worked to deter organized criminal activity in our area, laying more than 30 charges of drug trafficking or production.

Community Policing

Together with our Community Program Officer, several District 11 police officers were instrumental in working with our community partners to deliver educational and awareness presentations, aimed primarily at young people. In addition, we continued to build strong relationships with the communities we serve, and several crime prevention initiatives were put in place throughout the district to assist business owners with identifying crime related trends and protecting themselves from being victimized.

The Year Ahead

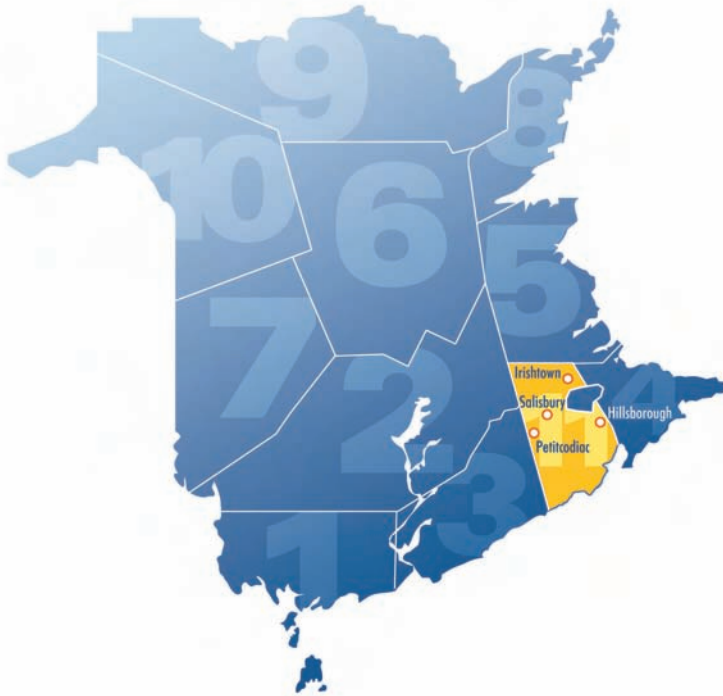

RCMP District 11 members remain committed to reducing crime by adhering to an evidence-based and intelligence-led approach to policing. As we move forward, we will encourage greater collaboration with neighbouring districts within Southeastern New Brunswick. This will increase our ability to share intelligence for the purpose of solving crime while maximizing the effectiveness of our resources. We will also continue to work closely with community partners to help divert young people away from leading lives of crime by referring them to the appropriate organizations and services. Traffic enforcement also remains a priority, and we will continue working with the newly developed Southeast Traffic Unit to enforce, educate, and reduce traffic infractions and unsafe driving practices in our region.

Our goal is to continue working closely with our partners to make our communities safe places to live and work. We would not be able to achieve our goals without the strong support we received from community leaders, organizations, and members of the public. We look forward to continuing to work together to help make our communities and roadways safe for all to enjoy.

■ Civilian Members Celebrate 50 Years of Service

In 2010, the RCMP celebrated the 50th anniversary of Civilian Members (CMs) providing service to the force. In New Brunswick, there are currently 85 Civilian Members working in RCMP detachments and units throughout the province. CMs play crucial roles in specialized, administrative, and technical positions to support the operational activities of our organization. Much of the success of the New Brunswick RCMP's crime reduction and prevention strategies is owed to the work of CMs including crime analysts and community program officers. CMs also provide valuable support and leadership in the areas of technological crime, telecommunications, strategic communications, and file management. A 50th anniversary lapel pin was created in recognition of the significant contributions that CMs have made to the RCMP and to Canadians.

On June 29, 2010 Michelle Suley of the Operational Communications Centre received a certificate of appreciation from the RCMP in New Brunswick's Commanding Officer. Her ability to take charge under pressure showed when a suicidal man barricaded himself, and her actions played a large role in bringing a potentially violent situation to a successful conclusion.
