REGINA POLICE SERVICE STRATEGIC PLAN 2011 - 2014

Chief's Message

I am pleased to present the 2011-2014 Strategic Plan. The Regina Police Service has a long history of preparing strategic plans that guide our work over a prescribed period of time. It is important to clearly articulate the mission, vision and values that shape our organizational culture. Further, we need to guide the focus of our work through stated goals and objectives, including clearly defined performance measures.

Creating an effective strategic plan is not an easy task. We need to understand the current environment and anticipate future demands for service that will affect public safety and security. The plan itself defines our work by establishing focus, clarity, priority and budget requirements for the future. While it is important to understand our challenges, it is more important to explore opportunities for improvement. As with any community, the issues Regina faces are complex and solutions are not simple. The Regina Police Service is committed to community policing and we recognize the best outcomes are achieved by working in partnership. It is important that we police with the community and not to the community.

In order to anticipate the future and better understand our current environment, we employed two methods to gather information. First, in early 2010 we conducted a community consultation planning day involving over 100 community partners and stakeholders. This group provided valuable feedback into the current status of our community in terms of crime and safety and also provided information pertaining to anticipated future challenges. Participants also provided input during the consultative process as to what our vision, mission and values should be. The second approach was to consult with our employees to gather their perspectives. All of this information was correlated and shaped into our plan for the next four years.

I am confident we have achieved our objective and our four year strategic plan will provide the foundation required to increase our overall efficiency and effectiveness. We are committed to our mission, "The Regina Police Service, through the actions of our dedicated and valued employees, strives to be held in the highest regard by the citizens of Regina, our partners, and peers in policing for ensuring a safe, inclusive and harmonious community."

Sincerely,

Troy Hagen
Police Chief

III - The Regina Police Service at a Glance

The Regina Police Service is responsible for policing the city of Regina, which had a 2006 census population of 179,246 and then encompassed 118.9 square kilometers. Regina experienced rapid growth in recent years, with a 2009 population estimated at 192,912 and area spanning 147.9 square kilometers.<sup>1</sup> The Regina Police Service has grown and diversified along with the city.

The Regina Police Service began with the appointment of James Williams as the first Town Constable in 1892, with an annual salary of $600 and a complementary uniform. The Regina Police Service today is a complex public service organization, with an operating budget for 2010 of over $58 million and an authorized staff complement of 529 permanent full time positions, including 386 sworn police officers and 143 permanent civilian employees.

The Regina Police Service operates under the authority of The Police Act, 1990, which provides a legislated mandate and codifies some of the common law duties of police. The primary duties of police are to keep the peace, prevent crime, protect the public and enforce the law impartially, with compassion and with respect for human dignity.

1 -- Estimates from City of Regina.

IV - Police Reported Crime

Crime statistics tell a different story in Saskatchewan than in most other parts of Canada. In 2009, Canada's crime rate was 8.1% lower than in 1977, the first year that Statistics Canada reported crime rates. In that same period, Saskatchewan's crime rate increased by 63.1%, almost doubling the national crime rate by 2009.

Regina has one of the highest crime rates among Canada's census metropolitan areas (CMA).<sup>2</sup> However, Regina's crime rate has decreased substantially in recent years. From 2000 to 2009, Regina's crime rate decreased more than in any other CMA in Canada.<sup>3</sup>

The crime reductions for Regina – which includes the urban area policed by the Regina Police Service and not the surrounding area also included in the CMA – were equally considerable. Regina's crime reductions from 2000 to 2009 outpaced national reductions:

- Regina's crime rate decreased by 29.4% compared to a national decrease of 15.8%;
- Regina's property crime rate decreased by 38.4% compared to a national decrease of 21.4%;
- Regina's violent crime rate decreased by 17.2% compared to a national decrease of 12.0%; and
- Regina's crime severity index, which accounts for both the seriousness of crime and the volume of crime per population, decreased by 31.1% compared to a national decrease of 18.3%.

Citizens in Regina have multiple avenues for reporting incidents to the Regina Police Service. There were 61,462 calls for service in 2009, resulting in 19,041 reportable occurrences. The number of calls for service increased by 14.9% since 2000, largely due to curfew checks conducted by police officers on select offenders as part of strategies to reduce motor vehicle thefts and break and enters. There were also 52,872 files in 2009 based on non-dispatched public reports taken by Direct Entry Victim Reporting (DEV), the Communications Centre, through mail, in person, or generated by an officer. These resulted in an additional 50,992 reportable occurrences for a total of 70,033 reportable occurrence files in 2009.

2 -- One or more neighbouring municipalities situated around and highly integrated with a major urban core compose a CMA, provided the total population is at least 100,000 with 50,000 or more living within the urban core. A CMA typically comprises more than one police service. Statistics Canada utilizes CMA data for its annual crime statistic comparisons.

3 -- Statistics Canada identified 33 CMAs in Canada in 2009. Only 25 of these were classified as CMAs in 2000. This comparison only includes those 25 cities classified as CMAs since 2000.

V - A History of Strategic Plans at the Regina Police Service

The Saskatchewan Police Commission has directed police services to develop strategic business plans within the framework of the legislated mandate of The Police Act, 1990 and the philosophy of community policing. The strategic business plan should:

- be consistent with the community policing philosophy;
- include performance measurement that is outcome based;
- articulate the organizational strategy of the police service; and
- include a human resource strategy.

The Regina Police Service implemented its first strategic plan in 1994. Subsequent plans were implemented on an annual basis. The duration of the plans were extended into a multi-year cycle in 2004. Extending a planning cycle over multiple years, with regular progress updates throughout the cycle, ensures that there is appropriate time to properly implement planned objectives before the next cycle of planning begins.

The previous strategic plan was in place from January 1st, 2008 until December 31st, 2010. Many of the performance targets from that strategic plan were achieved, including:

- targets for reductions in both break and enters and auto thefts were surpassed;
- a third patrol district (Central) was implemented to enhance the distribution of officers throughout Regina;
- the proportion of calls for service dispatched within the established time standards greatly increased;
- tactical crime analysis was enhanced with the additions of a tactical analyst position and sophisticated crime mapping software; and
- enhanced cultural awareness training, delivered bi-annually, was initiated in 2008 and delivered again in 2010.

The Regina Police Service values the planning process and the resulting strategic plan document. Strategic planning ensures clear and consistent strategic direction, a common understanding of the Service's goals, forethought of the Service's future, an impetus to adapt to pressing issues, a resource for budgetary planning, and transparency of the Service's decision-making to its stakeholders.

VI – The Process for the Current Strategic Plan

The planning process was initiated early in 2010. Renewal of the strategic plan provided an opportunity to improve readability, revitalize our Mission, Vision, and Value statements, as well as engage employee and community representatives about needs, issues, and opportunities.

The Strategic Planning Steering Committee, including both sworn and civilian members, worked to coordinate internal and external forums, analyze collected data, and construct the strategic plan document. Varying information sources were accessed, including an environmental scan, a series of internal forums with the employee, and a community consultation.

Environmental Scan

Environmental scanning involves the identification of factors that affect, or have the potential to affect, an organization's abilities to achieve its goals. These factors can be internal or external to the organization. They also can exist in the recent past, the present, or may come to exist in the near future. Below are some of the factors identified in the environmental scan:

- Regina's population is growing, particularly through immigration from other countries, provinces, and elsewhere in Saskatchewan;
- the bulk of today's international immigrants to Saskatchewan move from non-traditional source countries, such as China, India, the Philippines, and Vietnam;
- almost 10% of Regina's self-identified as Aboriginal in the 2006 Census; the proportion was higher in the inner-city neighbourhoods;
- Regina's population, on average, is getting older; Regina's Aboriginal population, however, is relatively young;
- the effects of the recent global recession have been felt here, though not to the same extent as in other regions;
- the number of housing starts in Regina rose in recent years as the city expanded; housing costs and rent also increased; Regina's vacancy rate was less than 1% in June 2010; and
- the Internet and new technology devices have changed the dynamics of some forms of crime and deviant activity.

Internal Forums

A series of internal forums were held with the Service's employees, with two-thirds of employees participating. Participants identified and prioritized the most pressing issues the organization should focus on over the next three to five years. Much of the input focused on internal issues; participants felt they could better serve the community if they were unobstructed by ineffective or inefficient processes or structures. Common themes included staffing, training, internal communication, and the need to be more proactive to emerging issues.

Community Consultation

The Regina Police Service hosted a one-day external forum, bringing together over 100 representatives from provincial and local government, the community, and other partners. Early drafts of the revised Mission Statement were also presented to attain feedback. Similar to the internal forums, participants were asked to identify what they felt the Service should focus on over the next three to five years. General themes included the relationship between police and the community, partnership opportunities; and promising practices from non-policing organizations regarding staff recruitment, development and retainment.

Creating the Strategic Plan

The Regina Police Service managers were provided with summaries from the environmental scan, internal forums, and community consultation. This information was reviewed and issues were prioritized to determine the goals and initiatives to be included in the strategic plan. Actions were formulated and assigned to owners, performance measures were determined, and targets were set. The plan was approved by the Regina Police Service Executive Committee and by the Regina Board of Police Commissioners.

Implementing the Strategic Plan

This strategic plan will be in place from 2011 through 2014. The owners, target dates, and performance measures ensure transparency and accountability for achieving assigned actions. The Regina Police Service managers will annually review the progress made on each action to ensure target dates and performance measures are achieved. A community consultation will be held in the mid-term of the plan to provide an update to the public on progress and obtain feedback.

VII – Strategic Focus Areas

Strategic goals fall under one of four strategic focus areas. These focus areas ensure that strategic decision-making balances the pressures and opportunities facing various aspects of the organization. They are:

- Service Delivery – The core functions of the Regina Police Service are emergency response, quality investigations and response to non-emergency calls, traffic safety and crime prevention and community building. The anticipated outcomes of these efforts are crime reduction, increased public feelings of safety and security and decreased fear of crime.
- Partnerships & Community Engagement – We have a crucial role in reducing crime and increasing safety in Regina but we do not work alone in this endeavour. We require assistance from the community and from our local, provincial, and national partners who all share stake in improving community well-being.
- Recruitment & Employee Development – A qualified, well-trained and motivated staff, properly deployed, is crucial to delivering optimal service to the citizens of Regina.
- Business Processes & Infrastructure – The Service is committed to evaluating and adapting its facilities, equipment, and business processes to ensure they meet service objectives and the organization's needs, are consistent with sound budgeting principles, and reflect forward planning.
